

The Dragons Heart

by Clara

Once upon a time, there was a Princess...

Her name was Isabelle. One day, when Isabelle was reading in her room - a wizard came and kidnapped her.

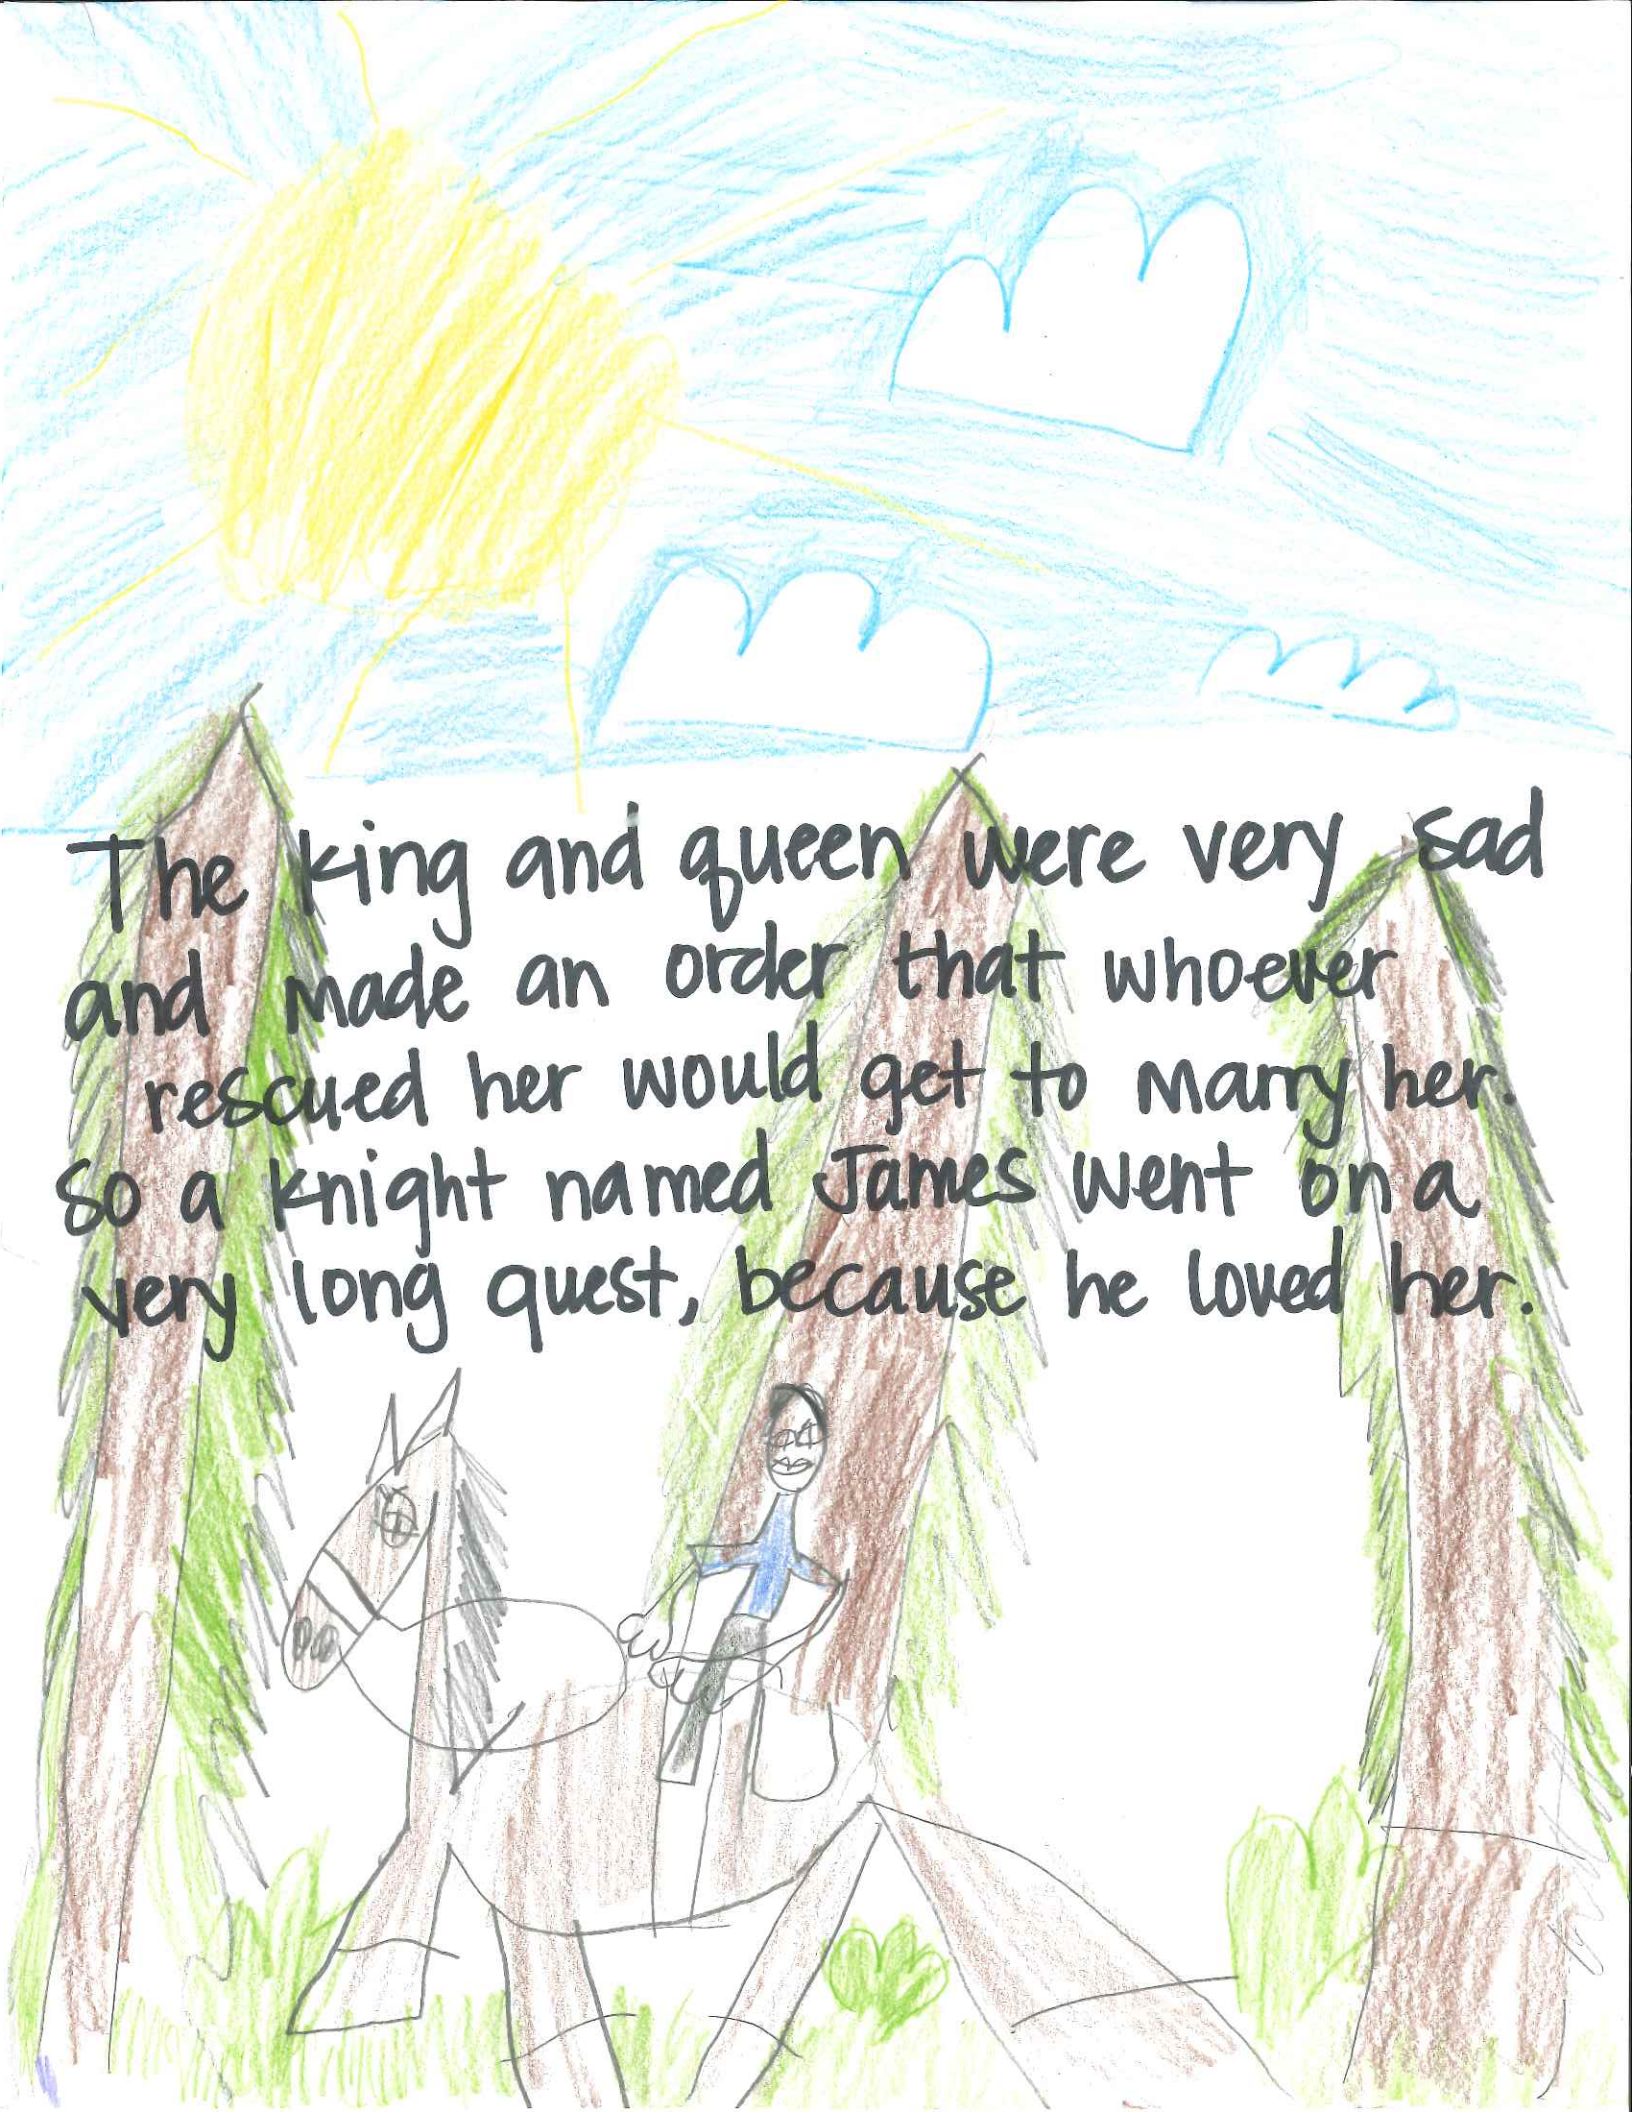

He took her down a scary tunnel
and the princess was very frightened.
At the end of the tunnel stood a very large....

DRAAGON!!

The wizard passed the princess into the dragons claws.

A child's drawing in crayons. At the top, a large yellow sun is on the left, and two white, heart-shaped clouds are in the center and right against a blue sky. Below the sky, three tall, thin trees with brown trunks and green foliage stand in a row. In the foreground, a knight with a blue tunic and a sword is riding a white horse. The knight is smiling and looking towards the viewer. The horse is also smiling. The ground is green with some small bushes.

The king and queen were very sad and made an order that whoever rescued her would get to marry her.
So a knight named James went on a very long quest, because he loved her.

Finally, he reached the dragons cave.
The wizard was standing there. He fought the wizard and won. The wizard disappeared.

So he ran down the tunnel and went to fight the dragon. The knight pulled out his sword, but Princess Isabelle ran and stood in front of the dragon. She said, "This dragon is my friend, and he has a big, kind, dragon heart". James and Isabelle rode the dragon back to the castle.

The king thanked James for bringing back his daughter. At their wedding all the guests were shocked - the maid of honor was the dragon with the big heart!
