Once upon a time, there was a butterfly named Lily. She had one of her favorite dresses that was too small for her, so she was going to give it away to her friend Zapper the Moth. Zapper liked the dress, too. Lily saw a nice rock, and she was tired. So she put the dress down and sat down on the rock to rest.

Zapper was walking in the grass, when she saw the dress. So she took it, because she didn't see Lily. When Lily was ready to get back up again, she looked at her dress, but it was gone! She knew that the friend who needed it would be mad. So she started to look for it!

She bumped into Blue Spot the Caterpillar. So she told him what happened. He decided to help. So they looked under rocks and plants, but they couldn't find it.

Then, they decided to go to Zapper's house and ask her if she's seen it.

When they got to Zapper's house, they saw Zapper in the dress! So they figured out that she's the one who took it! Then Zapper invited them over for some tea and cookies.
