Nine PBS in the Community

1 Filmmaker Paul Schankman, Nine PBS's VP and Chief Content Officer Aja Williams, and author and historian Ed Wheatley attend the premiere of Head over Heels: Wrestling at the Chase June 4 in the Public Media Commons.

2 Nine PBS team members and volunteers supported a Village of Moms literacy event in May that included lots of PBS KIDS resources.

3 Team members attend the St. Louis Regional Literacy Association's spring gala in May, from left: Fatama Moorer, parent engagement manager, Alex Stallings, director of early learning, Angie Carr, vice president and chief impact officer, and Dr. Arionna Ralleigh, curriculum design manager.

4 Beyond Housing hosted a Nine PBS Financial Literacy Power Hour session in May that focused on culturally competent content and activities that boost learning. This lucky girl went home with a PBS KIDS Playtime Pad.

5 Nine PBS was honored at Focus St. Louis's 25th Annual What's Right with the Region Awards on May 12 for our Teaching in Room 9 TV series. Angie Carr (center), vice president and chief impact officer, and Andi Harpring (right), director of engagement and learning, accept the award from Bill DeWitt III (left), president, St. Louis Cardinals, and co-chair of What's Right with the Region Awards.

Dear Friends,

We were so happy to kick off our summer with a screening of Head over Heels: Wrestling at the Chase in June. Nostalgia lovers got to relive memories from a simpler time and experience the unbelievable story of how the local Chase Park Plaza hotel, KPLR-TV, and professional wrestling merged to create must-see TV in St. Louis for close to three decades. You can watch it anytime on the free PBS Video App.

And speaking of events, on June 24 we welcomed guests to our Midsummer Celebration, where we celebrated some of our recent accomplishments, we honored Harvey and Judy Harris with our 2022 Pioneer Spirit Award, and we dedicated the Jack Galmiche Public Media Commons. Since the Commons opened in 2014, we've entertained and inspired thousands of community members. We're looking forward to many more years of meaningful engagement in this special space.

We've just launched our new strategic plan for 2023–2025. We're fortunate to be in a good place. Our team and our culture are healthy and strong, our work is valued and meaningful, and we're on firm financial footing.

It's a time filled with promise, but also with many unknowns.

There's never been a time like this—the pandemic, racial reckoning, global issues, more content on more platforms than ever, concentrated media, and tech ownership—and things are changing daily. There isn't one clear path for us to follow, but rather many. Our strategic plan considers how we can make intelligent and thoughtful bets and take calculated risks that build on our strengths. I look forward to sharing the full plan in an upcoming issue.

One thing that hasn't changed is our commitment to our St. Louis region. We are honored that our community has supported us since the beginning. I hope you'll tell your friends what Nine PBS means to you and invite them to become a sustaining member, leave a legacy donation, or donate real estate or a vehicle. Go to ninepbs.org/support to learn more.

Enjoy the rest of the summer!

Get Ready to Be Drawn In

Producers and art team members at Lion Forge Animation studios filmed a segment for Living St. Louis.

An initiative designed to spark a love of learning, help close the literacy gap, and authentically celebrate kids who do not get to see themselves nearly enough in today's media.

For months now, we've been teasing you with "coming soon" ads for our new kids' initiative, Drawn In. Our Drawn In website will soon be brimming with digital comics, animated shorts, games, and other fun activities for kids as well as educational resources for grown-ups and educators to help reinforce the literacy lessons of Drawn In. Please visit us at drawnin.org later this summer to experience it firsthand!

Drawn In is a comic-based adventure following four kids from the fictitious Midland City (modeled after a Midwest city like St. Louis). Tyler, Nevaeh, Jadyn, and Grace share a love for comics, which places them frequently in Lady M's Imaginarium, a comic shop, with their beloved mentor. Sometimes characters from their favorite comics escape from the pages and cause mayhem in their real world. They must use teamwork and problem-solving skills to make things right again.

Not just another kids show

Like all shows created for PBS audiences, Drawn In will educate while it entertains. Every aspect of this initiative is rooted in a literacy curriculum developed to improve grade-level fluency among early elementary school children. This curriculum is the foundation for the Drawn In comics, animated shorts, website, and dozens of early learning events serving prioritized Black and brown families through our community partners.

Every episode features Lady M's Magnificent Words, which are essential vocabulary words identified to build reading competency and confidence among the target age group. These elements intersect to create an initiative designed to spark a love of learning and help close the literacy gap.

What makes Drawn In local?

Drawn In has been created with deep partnerships from our local community to ensure we celebrate the experiences of Black and brown families living in our region. With a BIPOC (Black, Indigenous, and People of Color) leading cast of characters, Drawn In authentically showcases kids who do not get to see themselves nearly enough in today's media.

Some of the best of what you see on PBS starts at local stations. Nine PBS has consistently been a national leader in community engagement, so it was natural for the station to step in and lead where we saw a gap and an opportunity to enrich the content landscape.

Our ambitious initiative is produced in partnership with St. Louis-based Lion Forge Animation, which has received international attention as one of only two Black-owned animation studios globally. They were honored with a 2020 Academy Award for the animated short film, Hair Love.

Among the values and goals that Nine PBS and Lion Forge share is a commitment to a uniquely local initiative that authentically represents St. Louis. Most of the creative team, producers, actors, and specialists on our Community Advisory Board are BIPOC and call St. Louis home.

What makes Drawn In so meaningful?

The local kids voicing the animation have wonderful insight on the initiative. Riley Adams, who plays Nevaeh, says, "Being Nevaeh means a lot to me. It's showing this strong, female, Black girl as being [a] leader of her friend group...and helping her community in an amazing way. She's such a smart and fast-thinking girl and it really inspires me as a person and...it can inspire a lot of other Black girls, and girls in general."

Carl Reed, executive producer of Drawn In and cofounder of Lion Forge Animation, sums it up best. "Comics were my gateway to becoming an avid reader as a kid. After falling in love with comics, I began to love any book that interested me. I noticed there weren't many characters who looked like me, or many people of color who were presented as comic or animation fans. In Drawn In, both are addressed. In addition to fulfilling items on my childhood wish list, Drawn In has the potential to encourage more children, especially those who are most vulnerable, to become voracious readers. I couldn't be prouder of it."

We've had tremendous support from local and national funders for this initiative. Drawn In is supported in part by the Corporation for Public Broadcasting and The Regional Arts Commission of St. Louis. Support for the associated community engagement activities comes from the Steward Family Foundation, with additional support from Joseph and Sandra Lehrer in memory of Ted Koplar. ## Drawn In in the Community

Literacy Power Hours are events created to engage families in playful learning by using the vibrant characters and storylines of Drawn In.

These culturally relevant writing workshops feature Drawn In comics and provide a mini-lesson, read aloud and creative writing time, and sharing time that encourages early learners to be confident readers and writers.

Nine PBS partners with trusted, local organizations to host these immersive Power Hour learning sessions in our key priority areas: St. Louis City, North St. Louis County, and East St. Louis.

Nine PBS held a Literacy Power Hour at EyeSeeMe African American Children's Bookstore in May.

Molly of Denali Exhibit and Vision Award

The Magic House, St. Louis Children's Museum, is partnering with Molly of Denali, the acclaimed PBS KIDS series, to bring the show to life in a new cultural exhibit, Molly of Denali: An Alaskan Adventure, which opened to the public in May. The exhibit showcases Alaska and Molly's life in the summer and winter seasons with hands-on activities. Visitors can pretend to fly a replica bush plane, drive a snowmobile, and navigate a snow maze in snowshoes.

The National Association for Multi-ethnicity in Communications bestowed its 2022 Vision Award in the animation category to Molly of Denali. The awards are given to programming that reflect the lives, spirit, and contributions of people of color that mirror the diverse composition of the viewing audience.

📺 Molly of Denali airs on Nine PBS weekdays at 5 pm, and weekends at 6 am and on Nine PBS KIDS weekdays at 5 pm and weekends at 3 pm.

Re-Living St. Louis: A Summer of Favorites

"What's your favorite story?" is a question Living St. Louis producers are often asked, and it's a difficult one to answer. But after 19 seasons and more than a thousand stories, they will try to answer the question by compiling and rebroadcasting some of their favorites.

The producers have combed through the archives to put together a summer of LSL favorites (yours and theirs) from a young Jack Dorsey explaining a new thing called Twitter to an attempt to set the world Hula Hoop record; a trip across the Mississippi River hanging from the Poplar Street Bridge; and caves, stunt planes, rock and roll history, a knight for hire, and memories of cruising North County.

📺 Re-Living St. Louis will air on Mondays at 7 pm in July and August.

Summer Fun for the Whole Family

You can explore and play with your child all season long with a variety of free resources from PBS KIDS. Spark curiosity and creativity with hands-on activities, tips, and games around different themes supporting literacy, math, science, and life skills.

Quick tips to help keep your kids excited about learning.

- Ask lots of questions. Encourage your kids to participate in conversations by asking them questions like: "Why do you think that happened? What will happen next?"
  - Encourage kids to search for answers. When your children ask you "why?" see if you can work together to figure out what they need to know or do to find the answer.
  - Try something new. Summer is a wonderful time to try new things like reading a new kind of book, tasting new food, or exploring a new park.
  - Just have fun. Summertime comes along only once a year, so make sure to have fun while you're learning.

Help for Tomorrow, While Making an Impact Today

Nine PBS Legacy Match is the first legacy match opportunity in the history of our organization. ## St. Louis Chef Wins Cooking Challenge

Adding to the national accolades bestowed on St. Louis chefs and restaurants, the Nine PBS Create channel announced Adam Lambay of St. Louis as the winner of a nationwide cooking challenge. Lambay is executive chef at the Hilton St. Louis at the Ballpark, with a resume that includes positions at high-end restaurants throughout the region.

As the grand prize winner of Create Cooking Challenge: My Family's Recipe, he will receive cash and production equipment to finance and produce a 10-episode web series on CreateTV.com. His web series will focus on accessible "Indian-inspired" recipes that make use of spices and aromatics.

Nine PBS isn't just the place for dramas, local stories about cultural assets and treasures, or educational programs. We are in the community, too, leading initiatives with networks of trusted partners to improve early learning.

On April 9, Nine PBS welcomed 94 formal and informal educators to our building for our first-ever Nine PBS Edcamp held in the spring. Edcamp follows an "unconference" model where attendees gather, learn, and share through a self-guided professional development experience. In a post-event survey, attendees had this to say:

100% felt that their voice was heard

93% heard new ideas to share with young learners

Supported by PNC, Dana Brown Charitable Trust, and Trio Foundation of St. Louis.

"I appreciated being able to hear educator voices in the sessions and gain a greater understanding of how the library can support them."

—St. Louis County Library partner attendee

"...Edcamp gives teachers and educators the opportunity to come together, share ideas, talk about things that may have been going on in their classroom, and... bounce ideas off one another."

—Educator attendee

Wittcoff Fellowship Program Grows

We welcomed the second group of Raymond H. Wittcoff Community Engagement Fellows to Nine PBS. Raymond Wittcoff was one of the driving forces behind the creation of public media in St. Louis and across the nation. A founding member of the station, he felt that public television had a responsibility to ensure all people are “as wise as they are powerful.” To carry on his legacy, Nine PBS created the Raymond H. Wittcoff Community Engagement Fellowship program. These fellows will create deeper relationships with those educators, caregivers, and community organizations that need public media most.

After a successful first year, Nine PBS’s Raymond H. Wittcoff Fellowship program has grown in 2022 to include:

- New Rural Fellow to serve the more than 20 rural zip codes in our designated market area
- New Education Fellow to serve our growing network of more than 500 educators from across the region
- Piloted and implemented literacy, STEM, and financial literacy sessions rooted in our locally produced content for our Community Hubs

Supported by the Raymond H. Wittcoff Foundation and the FS Foundation.

Welcome to Our 2022 Fellows!

- Pacia Anderson, East St. Louis Fellow, brings her broad experience as an active collaborator with arts and community organizations to the Nine PBS team, including leading the Regional Arts Commission’s Community Arts Training program.
- Meghan Halsey, Rural Fellow, has more than 14 years of experience in the preschool classroom. Her intimate knowledge of region’s rural communities will be a huge asset to Nine PBS’s expansion of our community engagement efforts.
- Terek Hawkins, North St. Louis County Fellow, is passionate about creating equitable opportunities for all children. He plans to use his four years of teaching experience and training from the Erikson Institute of Chicago to deepen Nine PBS’s impact in our existing footprint.
- Kayla Moore, Education Fellow, comes from a long line of educators. As an intersectional creative and facilitator of change, her seven years of experience in early childhood education and curriculum building will help Nine PBS continue to foster strong one-on-one relationships with educators.

The Great Muslim American Road Trip

The new three-part documentary series follows a young Muslim American couple—rapper Mona Haydar and her husband Sebastian Robins—as they explore America’s “Mother Road” and its surrounding Muslim communities on a 2,500-mile drive from Chicago to Los Angeles. This series highlights the diversity of Muslims across the nation and their contributions to history and culture, weaving a colorful story of what it means to be a Muslim in America today.

Channel 9.3 and Spectrum 185 | July features a collection of films that highlight democracy and mental health.

American ReFramed: Any Given Day

Filmmaker Margaret Byrne follows Angela, Dimitar, and Daniel, three Chicagoans participating in a specialized court probation program, as they manage their respective mental illnesses while searching for stability in their families, friendships, jobs, and housing. As Byrne intimately documents their rarely seen struggles, she is forced to also reckon with her own history of mental illness.

Doc World: Afghanistan: The Wounded Land

Warriors and civilians, men and women share their personal memories of the golden era, the Soviet occupation, the civil war, the Taliban regime, and of 9/11 and its aftermath.
