Dear Friends,

The St. Louis region and you rely on us to act with integrity, be transparent, and tell authentic stories—and trust is high. In an independent, online survey conducted in January 2024, 77% of Americans ranked PBS and its member stations, like Nine PBS, as the most trusted institution for the 21st consecutive year!

Leveraging this trust is especially important in this election season. Nine PBS is participating in the America Amplified initiative. We'll tell stories about issues important to rural communities, in both Missouri and Illinois, and how those issues affect votes cast at the ballot box.

In late February, I attended the Public Media Summit with several Nine PBS board members and staff. The annual event is put on by the national America's Public Television Stations (APTS) organization. This message from retiring APTS President and CEO Pat Butler rings true, "In our time, perhaps the most important public service we can render—the most useful impact we can have on our society—is to help our people become better citizens and help our country get along with itself."

PBS KIDS® is rolling out a full slate of civics-themed content to support the core idea that everyone, including children, can be active and contributing members of their home, school, and broader communities. And we've revamped our PBS KIDS/early learning website at ninepbs.org/kids so you can more easily find all the engaging, free resources available to parents, caregivers, and teachers to help kids thrive.

I am grateful for your continued support during our 70th year. Learn more and join the celebration at ninepbs.org/70.

Best,

Amy Shaw

City champions came out for our 314 Day Celebration where we celebrated the people and organizations committed to advancing St. Louis.

Nine PBS Edcamp on March 23 explored fresh ways to think about self-care, early learning, and PBS KIDS resources.

Environmental Enthusiasts Seek Smart Solutions

The three-part Hope in the Water from four-time James Beard Award and Emmy winner, Chef Andrew Zimmern, travels the globe to discover creative solutions and breakthrough blue food technologies (animals, plants, and algae harvested from freshwater and marine environments) that could not only feed us but help save our threatened seas and fresh waterways.

The series highlights the stories of amazing innovators, aquafarmers, and fishers who are working toward a sustainable future for the planet.

Celebrated environmental enthusiasts Shailene Woodley, Martha Stewart, Baratunde Thurston, and José Andrés reveal hidden underworlds jeopardized by climate change, irresponsible fishing and exploitation, and habitat destruction. They are each authentically tied to a particular story, seeking smart solutions to a perilous planet.

Hope in the Water is part of a multiyear, multiplatform initiative from PBS that explores every aspect of how climate change impacts communities, countries, and the entire planet.

► The docuseries Hope in the Water premieres on Wednesday, June 19, 8 pm.

Episode 1 | The Fish in the Sea | June 19, 8 pm

As our seas and sea life face existential threats on an unprecedented scale, new approaches to fishing on the open ocean aim to turn peril into plenty. In the debut episode of Hope in the Water, journalist Baratunde Thurston (America Outdoors) travels to Puerto Rico to see a sustainable diamondback squid fishery born from the wreckage of 2017's Hurricane Maria. The episode also features José Andrés, a renowned chef and humanitarian who founded World Central Kitchen, an Indigenous fisherwoman in Oahu, Hawaii, and two villagers on the Scottish Isle of Arran.

Episode 2 | Farming in Water | June 26, 8 pm

Farmed fish has a public relations problem rooted in a legacy of pollution and environmental disaster. But innovative technologies and a reconsideration of ancient practices may hold the secrets to sustainably feeding our growing population. Entrepreneur, tastemaker, author, and conservationist Martha Stewart learns the ropes at a scallop farm off the coast of Maine. As Stewart cooks the scallops, she notes that Maine's famous lobsters are now migrating further north in search of colder water. Aquafarms like this are the future as evidence in visits to Prince William Sound off the Gulf of Alaska, Vietnam, and Blomkest, Minnesota.

Episode 3 | Changing the Menu | July 3

With demand for seafood rising, what we eat can put tremendous pressure on fisheries and negatively affect the ocean. But creative approaches to diversifying our seafood diets are rewriting menus worldwide. Actor and activist Shailene Woodley (pictured on the cover of this issue) goes underwater with urchin divers who collect "zombie" urchins and then deliver them to a farm where their buttery roe is grown and harvested, plus visits to a high school in Philadelphia and Reykjavík, Iceland.

A Way for Busy Families to Come Together

Nine PBS continues to be a trusted resource for families in our region. Our learning resources and events provide a welcome opportunity for families to learn through play, meet their neighbors, and build supportive networks so the children in our region are better prepared for school.

Nearly a year ago, Amber Edmond learned of Nine PBS's community engagement opportunities. As a parent to five children between the ages 3 and 14, she was already familiar with PBS content, a favorite of her family. But when she learned of Nine PBS learning resources and community sessions, she gained new perspectives, learned about ways to support her children's learning, and found meaningful connections with other parents.

Amber and her children have since engaged with Nine PBS through the Drawn In Literacy Power Hour series and the Edcamp Unconference professional development opportunity for educators. Amber attended the 2023 Fall Edcamp, the first one to welcome parents and caregivers alongside teachers. Amber remembers sitting with teachers and gaining knowledge from their point of view, better understanding the experiences of teachers. It helped her learn more about her own kids, while sharing ideas and connecting with others over parenthood.

Amber and her family appreciate the ways Nine PBS resources and events are helping them learn, but maybe most impactful of all is the ways she is using Nine PBS as an avenue for her busy family to come together in one space and find quality, enriching time to spend together.

PBS KIDS Launches Civics Content Initiative

At a time when Americans feel more divided and disconnected than ever, teachers and parents may find it challenging to discuss civics and elections in the classroom and around the dinner table. PBS KIDS is rolling out a slate of civics-themed content across both new and existing series to help. There is also an updated Election Central collection on PBS LearningMedia that offers a wealth of media-rich resources.

Civics-themed PBS KIDS programming includes a second season of hit shorts series, City Island (pictured above; it premieres July 5) and two new music video series, City Island Sings, which encompasses 10 music videos that will debut across streaming platforms every Wednesday and Friday beginning May 29, and Together We Can (w.t.), created with Sesame Workshop. Together We Can will premiere the first 10 episodes on July 3, with the remaining 10 rolling out on August 7.

PBS KIDS also debuted a live-action shorts series, Tiny Time Travel, which began streaming on the PBS KIDS App in March. And the short-form series Nature Chat with Nature Cat debuted digitally on April 22.
