Dear Friends,

It's our 70th birthday on September 20! Thank you for celebrating with us this year. We are grateful to you and the generations of St. Louisans who have loved and supported us over the past 70 years. We are honored to continue the legacy of this remarkable institution that you helped build and to play a key role in changing the narrative about St. Louis so that we can all flourish.

I hope you will join us on Sunday, September 22, for our 70th Birthday Block Party with special guest Sonia Manzano, who was Maria on Sesame Street and created Alma's Way for PBS KIDS. The party is a celebration with and for our community! You'll enjoy an afternoon of food and music with a bit of nostalgia. Tickets are available at ninepbs.org/events.

We're proud to share with you the best of what only public media can provide. Our content and initiatives educate, inspire, engage, and share a diversity of perspectives. I hope they empower you and strengthen the social, democratic, and cultural health of our region and the country.

As part of our commitment to ensure ongoing, trusted information this election season, we will broadcast and stream several specials about civic engagement. A special pre-election episode of Living St. Louis is on October 21. It's part of America Amplified, a public media journalism initiative to boost election literacy.

Deadlock on September 24 encourages civil dialogue in an era dominated by polarizing debates. Citizen Nation, beginning October 8, is a story about teenagers who compete in the nation's premier civics competition.

Thank you for your continued support—and here's to the next 70 years!

Best,

Amy Shaw
President and CEO

We hosted an event at the picturesque Audubon Center at Riverlands in West Alton on July 11 to commemorate the 30th anniversary of the Clark "Super Bridge." From left: Moderator Dr. Nicole Adewale, civil engineer and Nine PBS board member; Chris Schmidt, Nova executive producer; Dr. Terrance Freeman, professor and mechanical engineer; and Karen Gelder, a field engineer who worked on the bridge's construction.

70, Ale Yeah! blonde ale was a hit with members and friends who came out on a Saturday afternoon to enjoy our birthday beer collaboration with 4 Hands Brewing Co. on June 22.

70 Years Serving Our Community

PTA moms from more than 100 school districts went door to door to help raise more than $100,000 to get Nine PBS on the air.

In 1951, the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) sent a letter to the mayors of cities across the United States that asked: “If a channel were reserved for educational television in your city, would your community use it?”

St. Louis answered with a resounding yes.

Then-Mayor James Darst formed a committee that brought together people from across the community—teachers, businesspeople, parents, and civic leaders—to explore the possibilities of a station for St. Louis. There was a lot of excitement and energy about a television station dedicated to educating the entire community, from North to South County, from East St. Louis to St. Charles. A station that would reach into cities and out into rural areas. A station that would educate children and inform adults. A station for all St. Louis.

Their innovative plan for a community-focused and -funded station became known as “The St. Louis Plan” and served as a model for educational stations nationwide.

In 2016, we hosted a marathon screening (all 14 hours) and celebration of the acclaimed documentary Eyes on the Prize, created by St. Louis native Henry Hampton. It is considered one of the definitive works on civil rights.

Community support was a critical part of the St. Louis Plan from the very beginning. After the station received approval and its call letters from the Federal Communications Commission, additional funds were still needed to get KETC on the air. PTA moms from more than 100 school districts jumped in to help, going door to door and raising more than $100,000, which made the St. Louis plan a reality.

Thanks to the vision, hard work, perseverance, and generous support of people across the St. Louis region, KETC/Channel Number 9 went on the air in September 1954, one of the first public television stations licensed to a community.

The British TV series Downton Abbey is the most-watched drama in PBS's history. Here, Nine PBS members dress the part at a 2015 screening event.

Lucky Number 9

We are lucky to have supporters like you and we are proud that our content highlights diverse perspectives and strengthens our community. We produce thought-provoking content that contextualizes local issues.

Here are some things you might not know about Nine PBS.

1. September 20, 1954: Nine PBS becomes the seventh public television station to go on air in the United States.
2. Our station's call letters, KETC, stand for Educational Television Commission. (The first choice was KNOW.)
3. In our 70-year history, 14 people have served as the station's president/CEO. Amy Shaw, the first woman to lead the organization, was named president and CEO in 2020.
4. KETC/Channel Number 9 became the fourth station on the air in St. Louis. Today, it is the only locally owned and operated station in our region.
5. Nine PBS predates PBS by 16 years!
6. Over the last 70 years, Nine PBS has produced 600 series and specials and won 90-plus Regional Emmy Awards.
7. We have had two homes during our 70 years. The campus of Washington University in St. Louis was our first home for 44 years. For the last 26 years, we've made our home in Grand Center and added the Public Media Commons 10 years ago.
8. Two original panelists, Bill McClellan and Ray Hartmann, sat around the Donnybrook table for its first 37 years. (Ray retired from Donnybrook in March 2024.)
9. More than 85% of Nine PBS's funding is from the generosity of local foundations, businesses, and viewers like you. Thank you!

The reading-powered superhero, Super Why!, greeted fans at a Nine PBS early learning event in 2016.

While the television landscape and St. Louis skyline have changed a lot in the past 70 years, the community's generous and enthusiastic support of Nine PBS has been a constant.

The original vision of the St. Louis Plan still guides Nine PBS, too: educating the community as the region's trusted storyteller and partner, offering a diverse range of programs and initiatives on air, online, and in the community.

Thanks to St. Louis and viewers like you, Nine PBS connects our region through compelling national programs, inspiring local stories, and engaging initiatives that help our region flourish.

We look forward to serving St. Louis and continuing to play a key role in building our community's future for all.

Teaching in Room 9 Season 9 Premiere

The newest season of Teaching in Room 9 premieres Monday, September 16 at 9:30 am. Nine PBS partnered with Webster University to produce the ninth season of Teaching in Room 9, our region's largest classroom. The series is broadcast weekdays on Nine PBS and designed to ensure three- to five-year-old kids are prepared for the classroom.

The partnership between Nine PBS and Webster's School of Communications involved developing a 16-week evening class that gave university students (pictured above with the Nine PBS team) real-world production opportunities in shooting, editing, and creating graphics for the show. Partnerships like this ensure we are building a pipeline of future public media professionals as well as providing high-quality educational opportunities for all in our region.

Features of the new Teaching in Room 9 season include new characters to support school-readiness and virtual field trips to new locations like the Saint Louis Zoo and the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis.

Learn more about the series at ninepbs.org/room9. In addition to the weekday broadcast, you can stream episodes anytime on video.ninepbs.org, Nine PBS's YouTube channel, and on the PBS App.

Teaching in Room 9 is supported by Bank of America, Berges Family Foundation, Boeing, The Cigna Group Foundation, Dana Brown Charitable Trust, Emerson Charitable Trust, and Pershing Charitable Trust.

Drawn In Abroad

In June 2024, Linda Mitchell (pictured above with an African student), executive director of Metro East Literacy Project, traveled to the coast of western Africa for two weeks to support literacy development in Liberia. As one of her curriculum resources, Linda used Drawn In comics to support vocabulary development of the students she met. Comics were given to the children to help build their at-home libraries.

Drawn In is a multiplatform initiative focused on supporting literacy for local kids aged 5-8 years old. The series follows four comic book-loving kids—Tyler, Jady, Grace, and Nevaeh—whose real world collides with their comic world in every story. When characters escape from the comic pages, it takes keen vocabulary, problem solving, and teamwork to set the world right again.

Combating Pharmacy Deserts in St. Louis

The June 13 episode of Listen, St. Louis with Carol Daniel with guest Dr. Marcus Howard hit a nerve (with 65K-plus plays on Instagram in August). Howard is the founder of the only Black-owned pharmacy in Missouri. As businesses like Walgreens and CVS close stores nationwide, creating pharmacy deserts, Howard's GreaterHealth Pharmacy & Wellness at Delmar Divine, an independent pharmacy, is filling the gap in underserved and underrepresented communities.

BE MY NEIGHBOR DAY

Saturday, September 7
9:30-11 am

Outdoors in Nine PBS's
Public Media Commons

Free, but registration is required at ninepbs.org/events.

At Be My Neighbor Day, kids will learn about being a caring neighbor, meet neighborhood helpers from the St. Louis Fire Department, and get a picture taken with PBS KIDS characters Daniel Tiger and Alma.

Fun activities are planned for the entire family! Two joyful stories will be read aloud, with the book's pages projected onto a big video screen. The books will be read in English and Spanish and interpreted in American Sign Language.
