

What Pets Do on Their Days Off

By: Waylen Dieterle

It's a very nice to know you are here
This is a very nice to know you are here
This is a very nice to know you are here

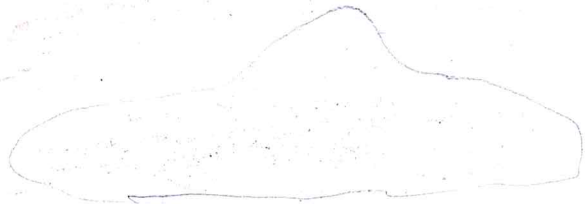

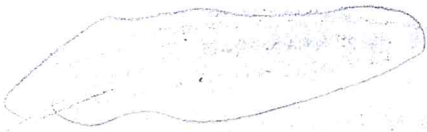

Have you ever wondered what your pets do while you're gone? Well if you have and you're suspicious, you're going to find out!

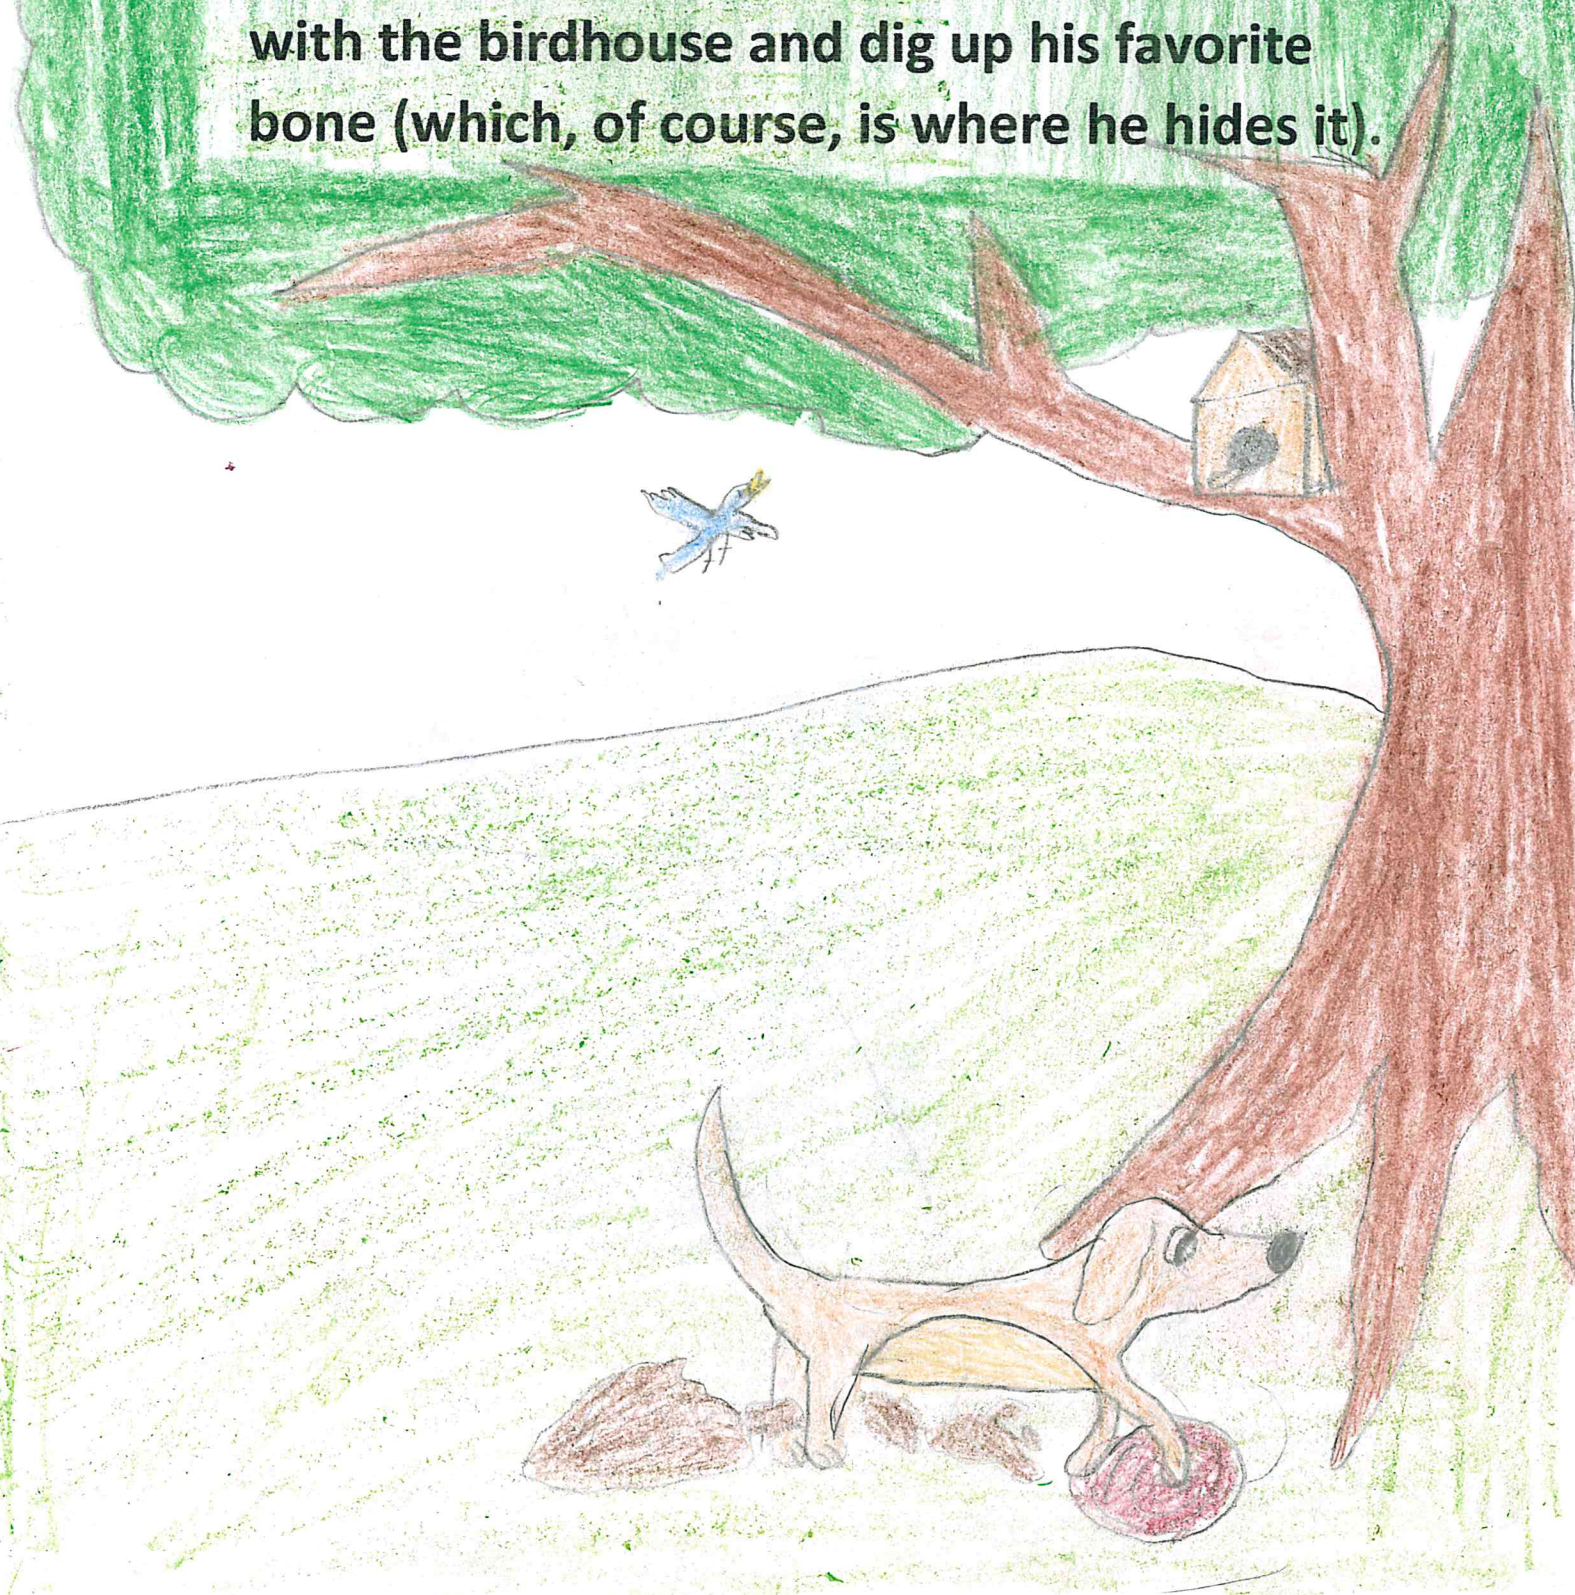

First is the dog. You know that right after you drive away in your car, he crawls through his dog door and heads outside.

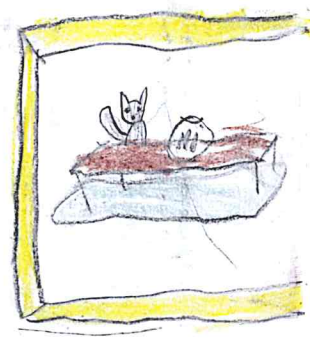

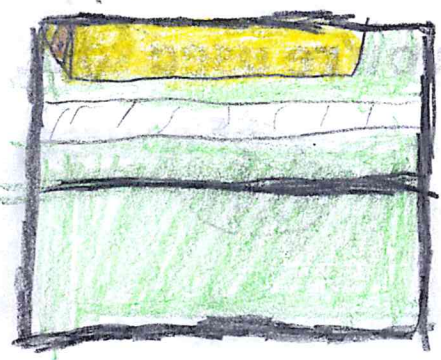

And do you know just what he'll do as soon as he gets out? He'll go to a tree and bark at the squirrels. When he is tired of barking, and his throat is sore, he'll go to the tree with the birdhouse and dig up his favorite bone (which, of course, is where he hides it).

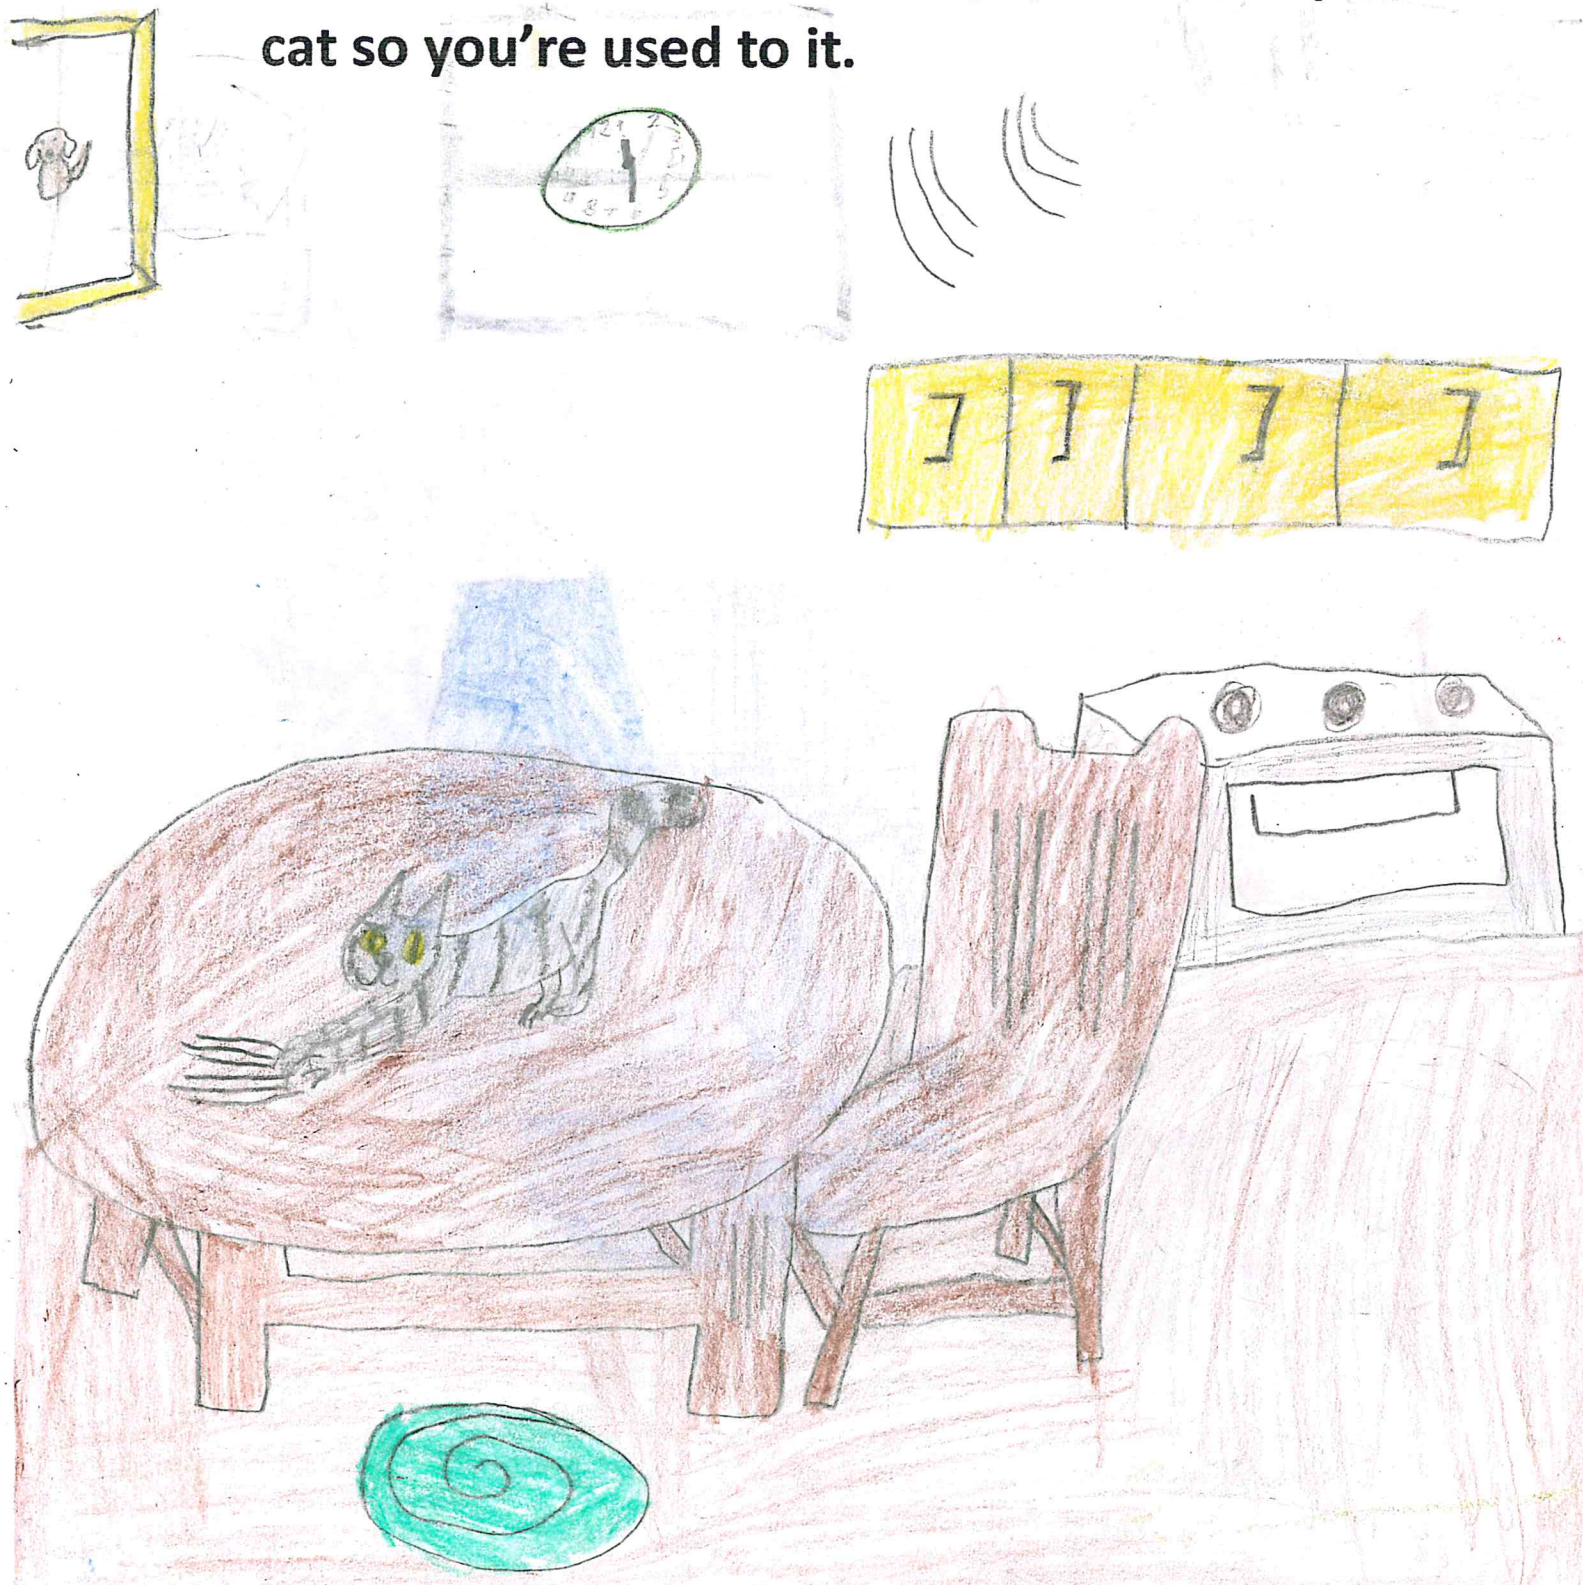

Next is that part of the (the...
troubleshooting) (the...
the... and... you...

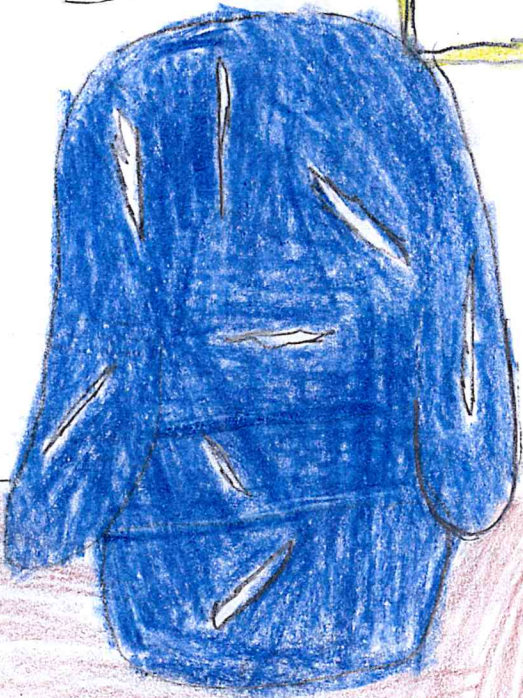

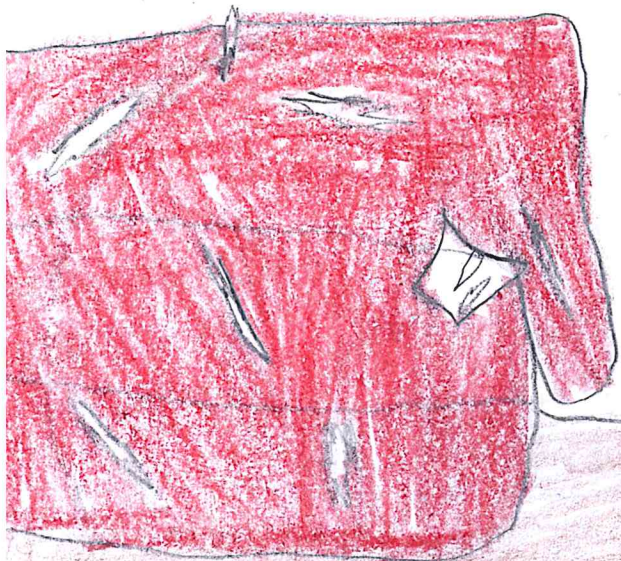

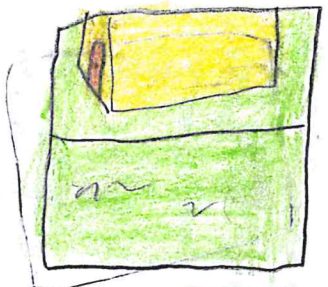

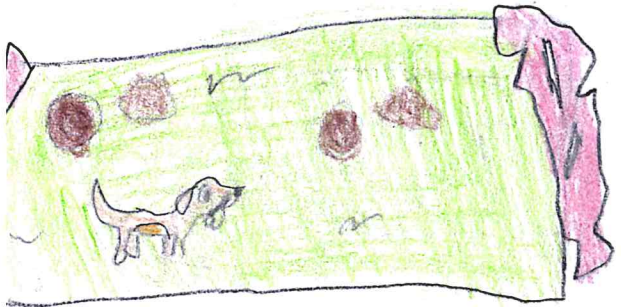

DOO
COO

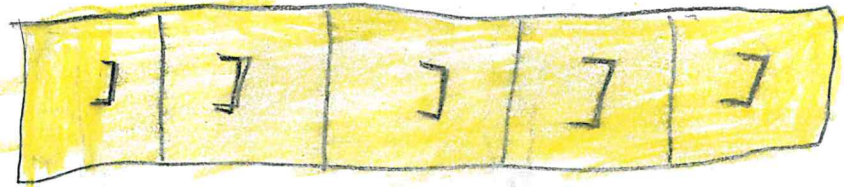

Next is that darn old cat. Ohh, she's a troublemaker!!! When you're gone she rips up the sofa and pillows! She also scratches the walls and tables, but hey, you have a pet cat so you're used to it.

Also after the first few days of the
the first few days of the first few days of the
the first few days of the first few days of the

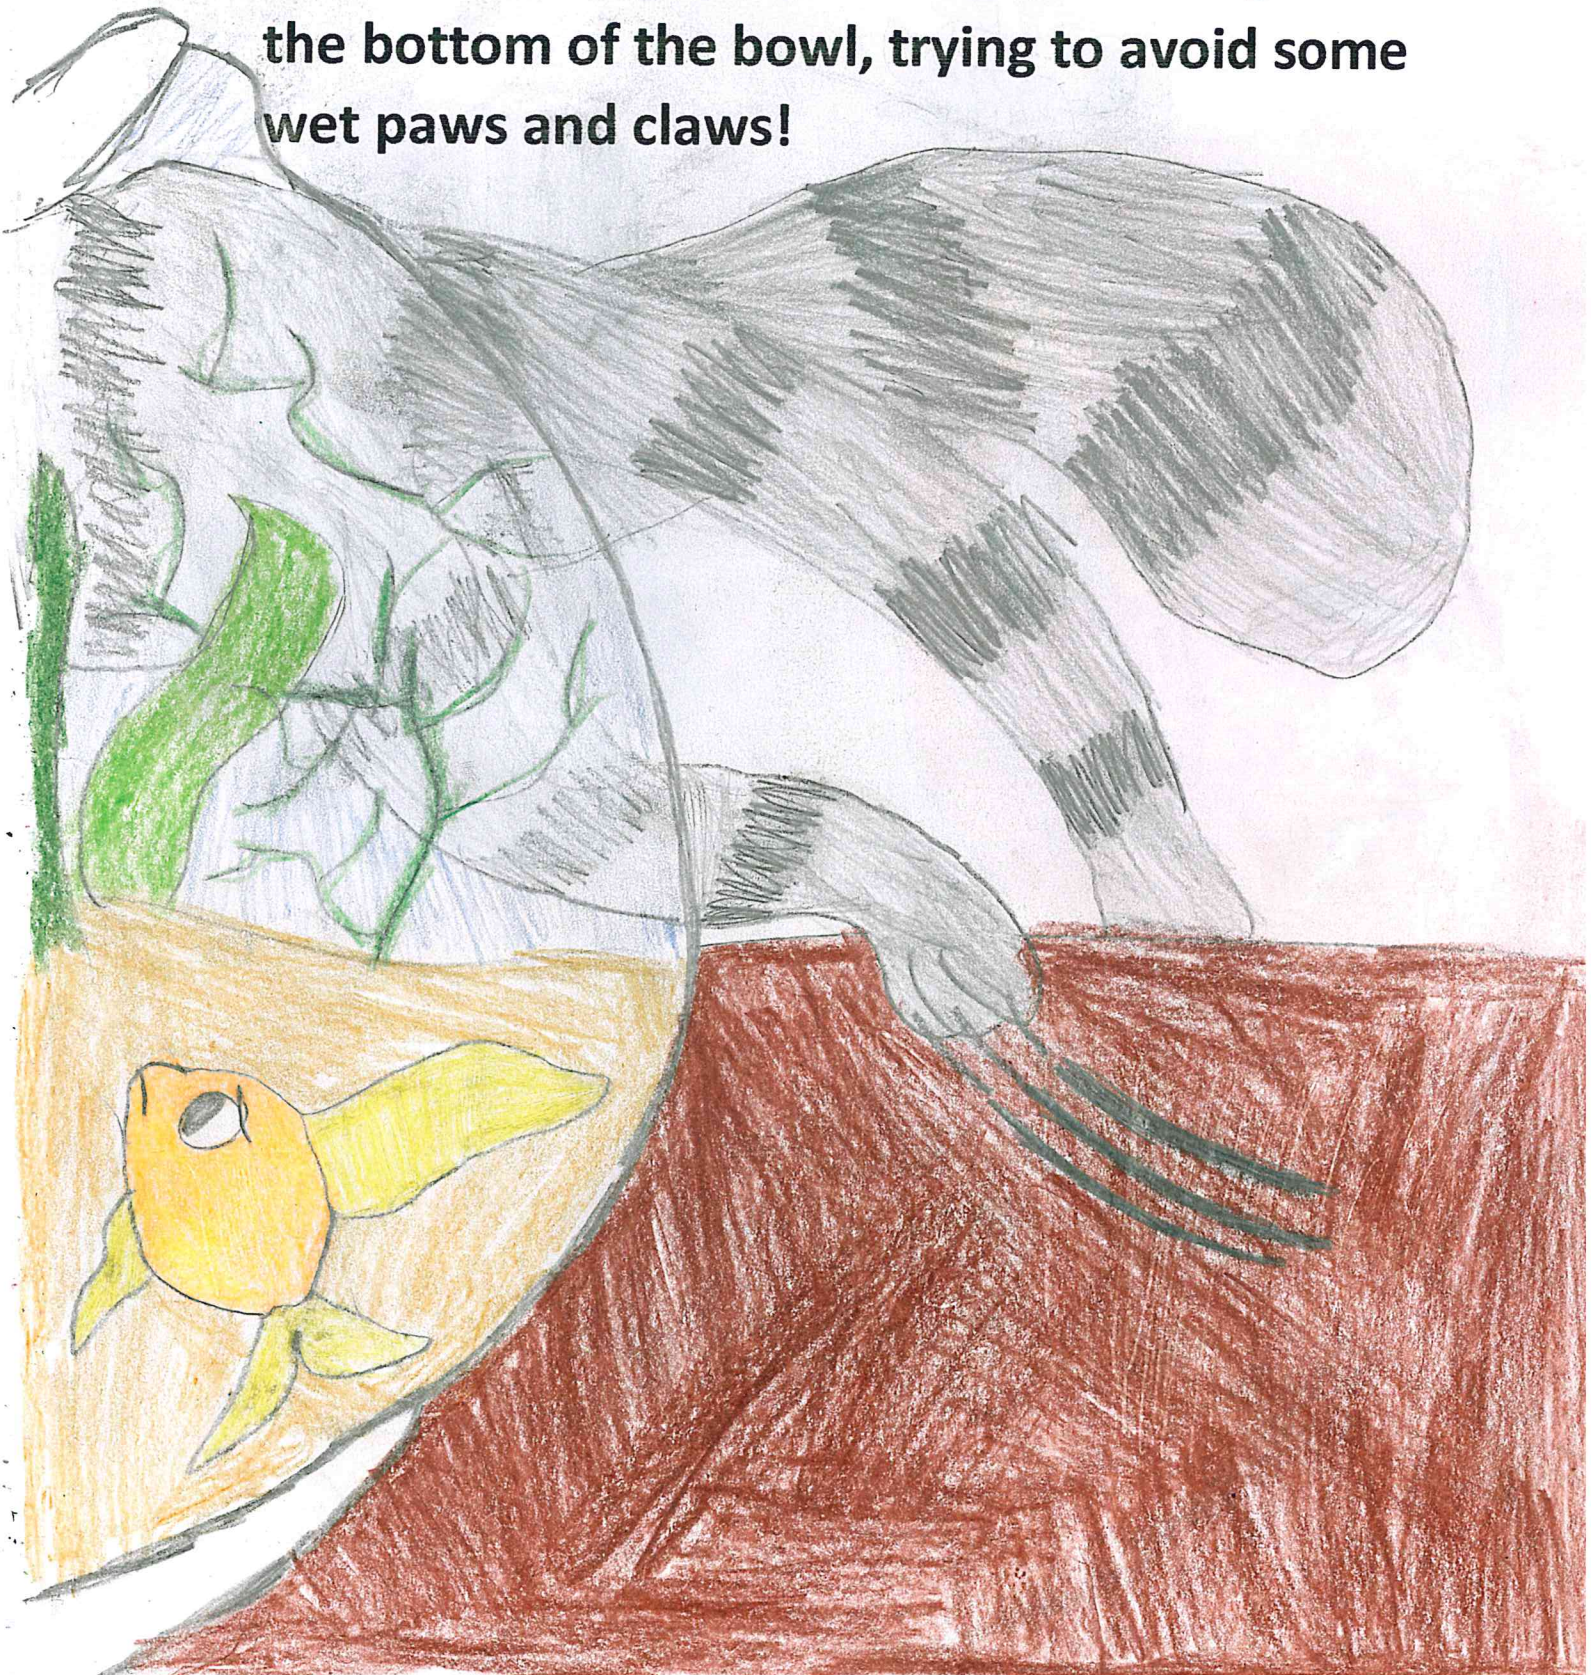

Also, after she has taken her afternoon nap, she'll go over to the fish bowl and do some indoor fishing!

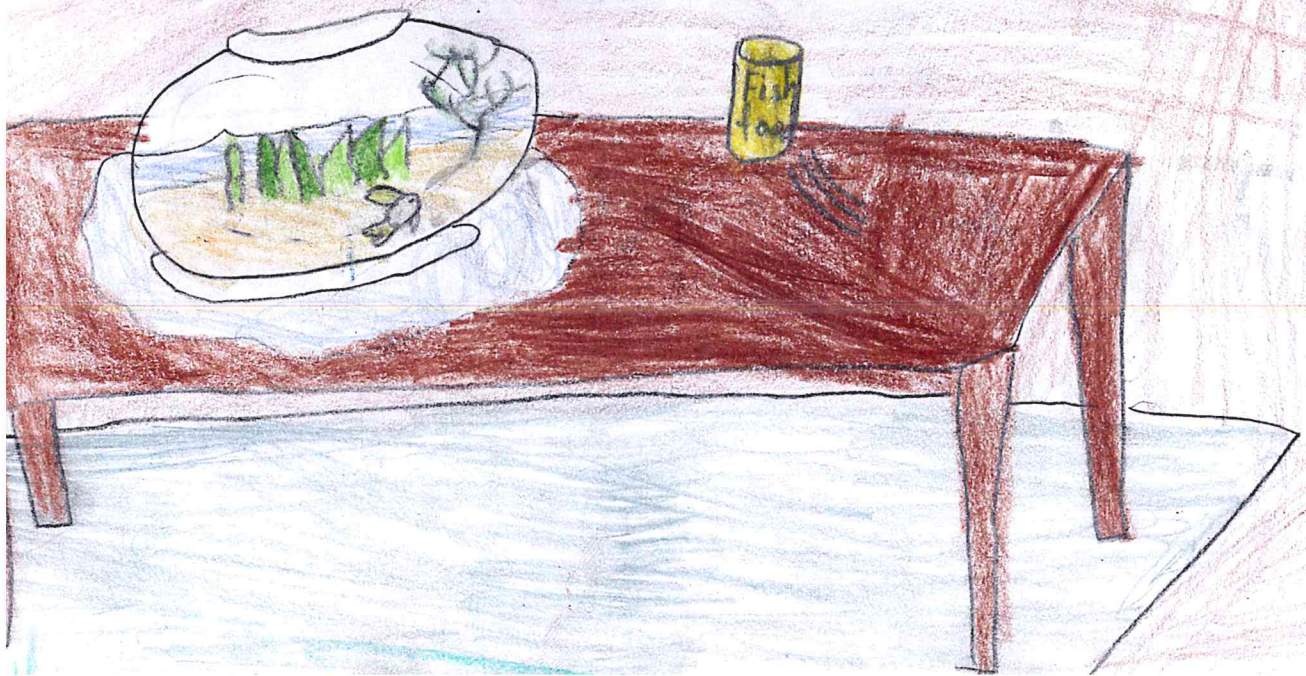

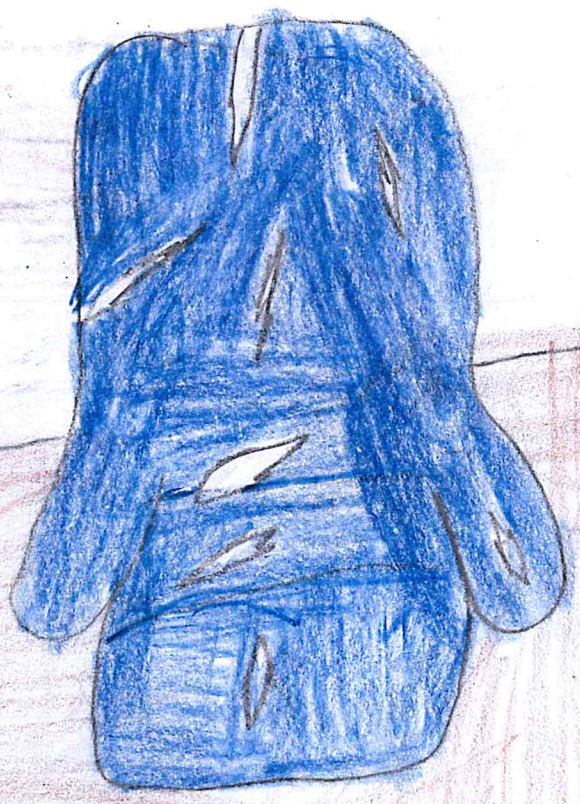

Faint, illegible text visible through the paper, likely bleed-through from the reverse side.

Finally, I am going to tell you about some fishy business. And because of the indoor fisher, the fish is desperately swimming to the bottom of the bowl, trying to avoid some wet paws and claws!

And that is why when you get home from work there are always holes in your yard, claw marks on everything, and your cat always has wet front paws.

THE END

About the Author

Waylen Dieterle lives in rural North Dakota with his mother and father along with, three brothers, and one sister. He made this book at the age 8-years-old and wishes to become a published author when he grows up taller.