The Penguin Who Didn't Like Showers

Written and Illustrated
by William Yanke

Once upon a time, there was a penguin who did not like to shower.

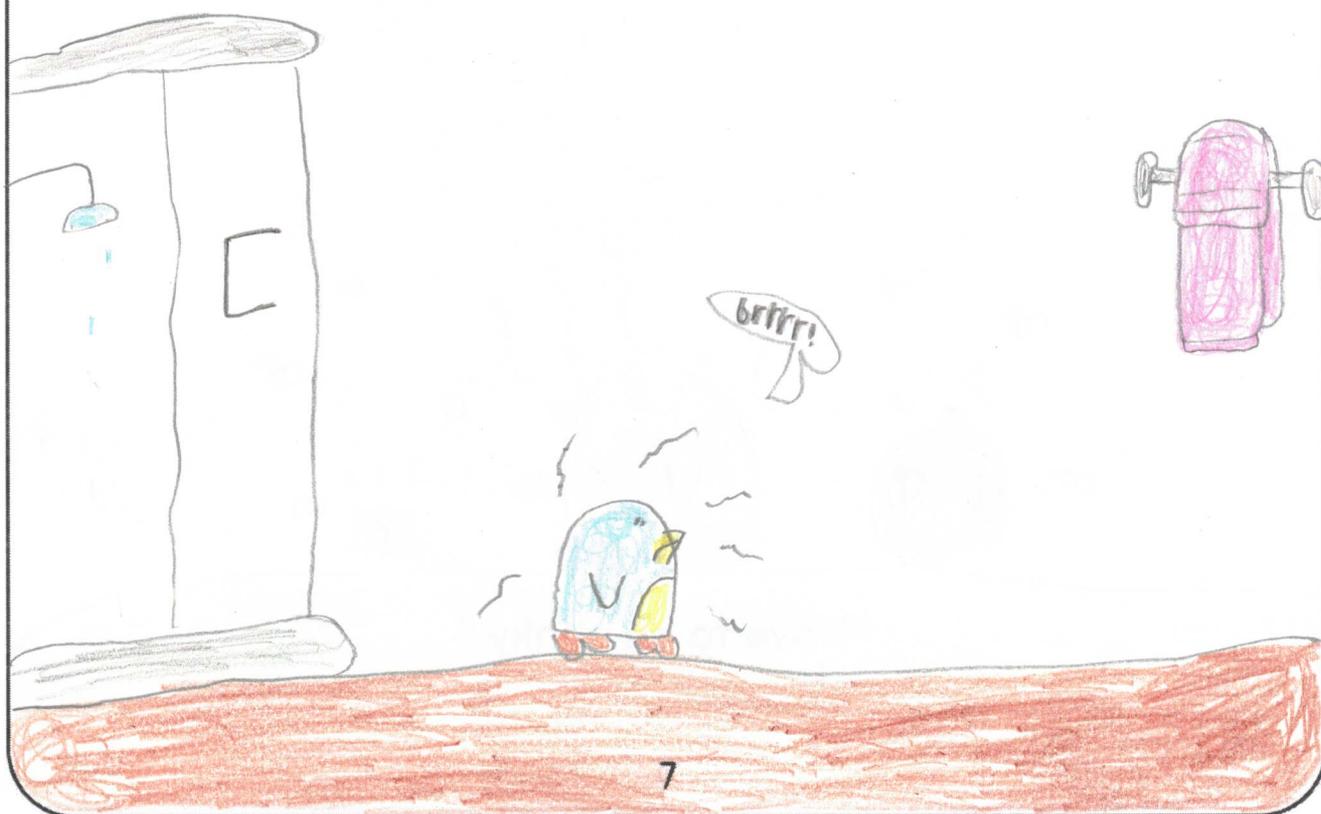

He did not like it because the water could get cold.

He did not like it because he thought a monster could show up.

He did not like it because when you are done,
you are cold, AGAIN.

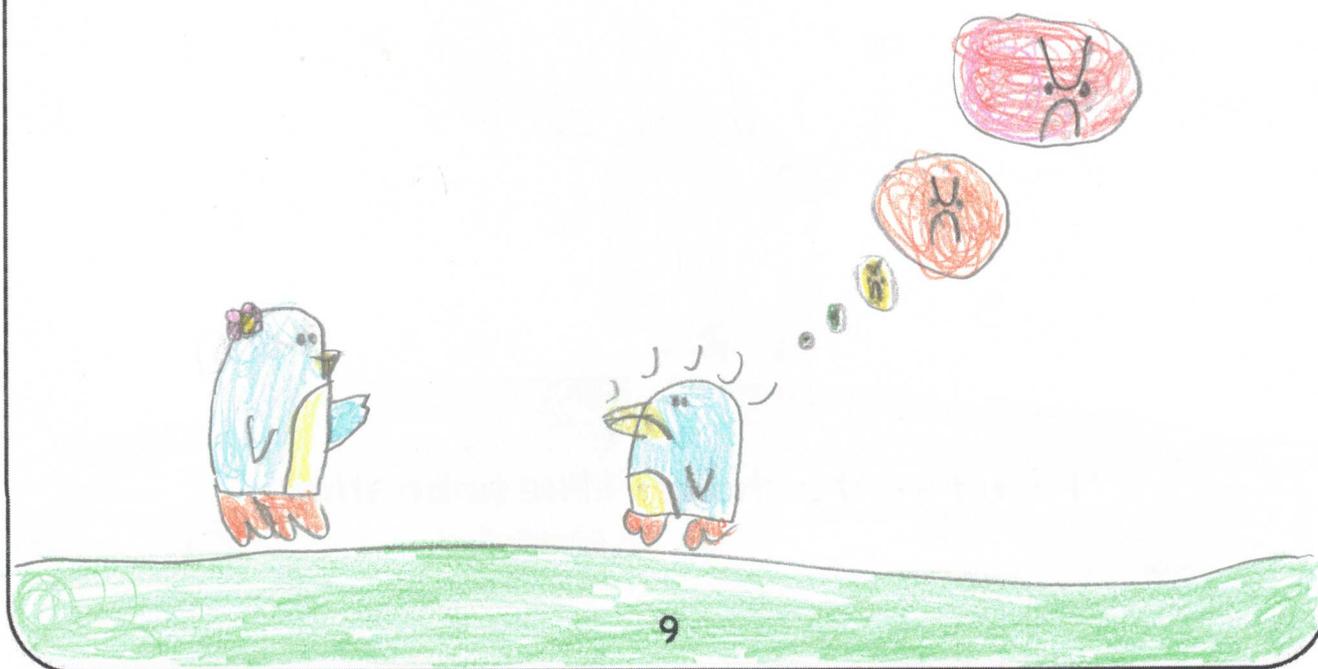

He was a stinky penguin.

"I love to be stinky."

But his mom came and said,
"You stink. You need a shower."

"No!!!" the penguin said.

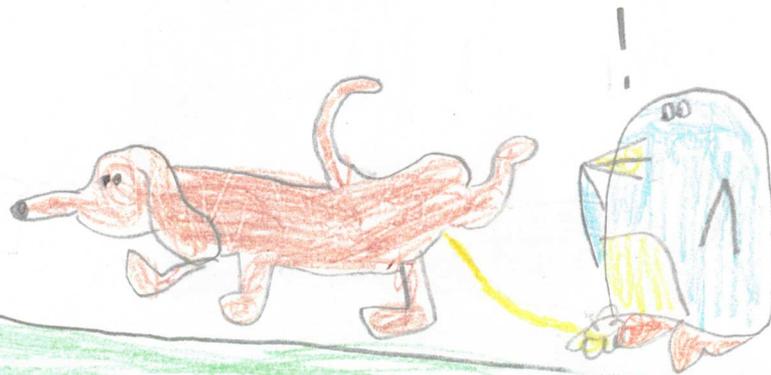

"I don't want a shower. I like to be stinky."

Right then, his pet dog walked up to him.
He sniffed the penguin's feet, and his eyes went wide.

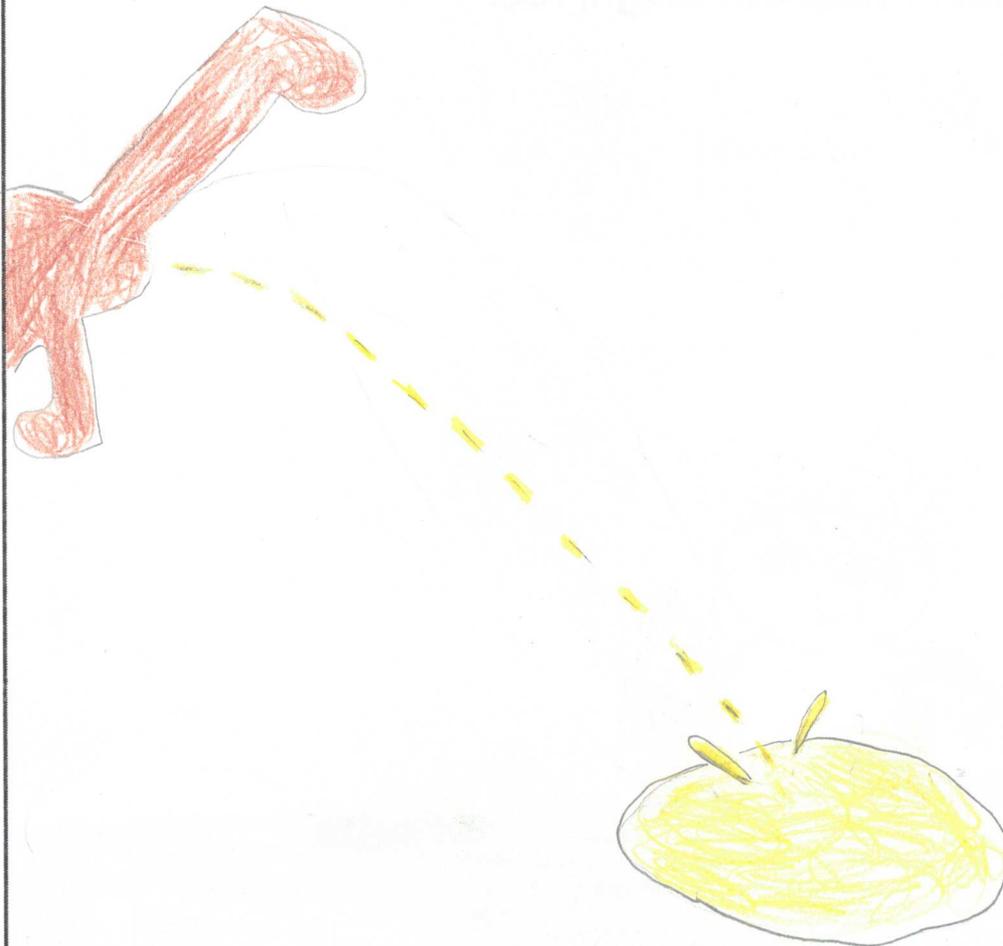

They were stinky!

Then, the unexpected happened.
The dog lifted its leg...

and started PEEING ON THE PENGUIN!

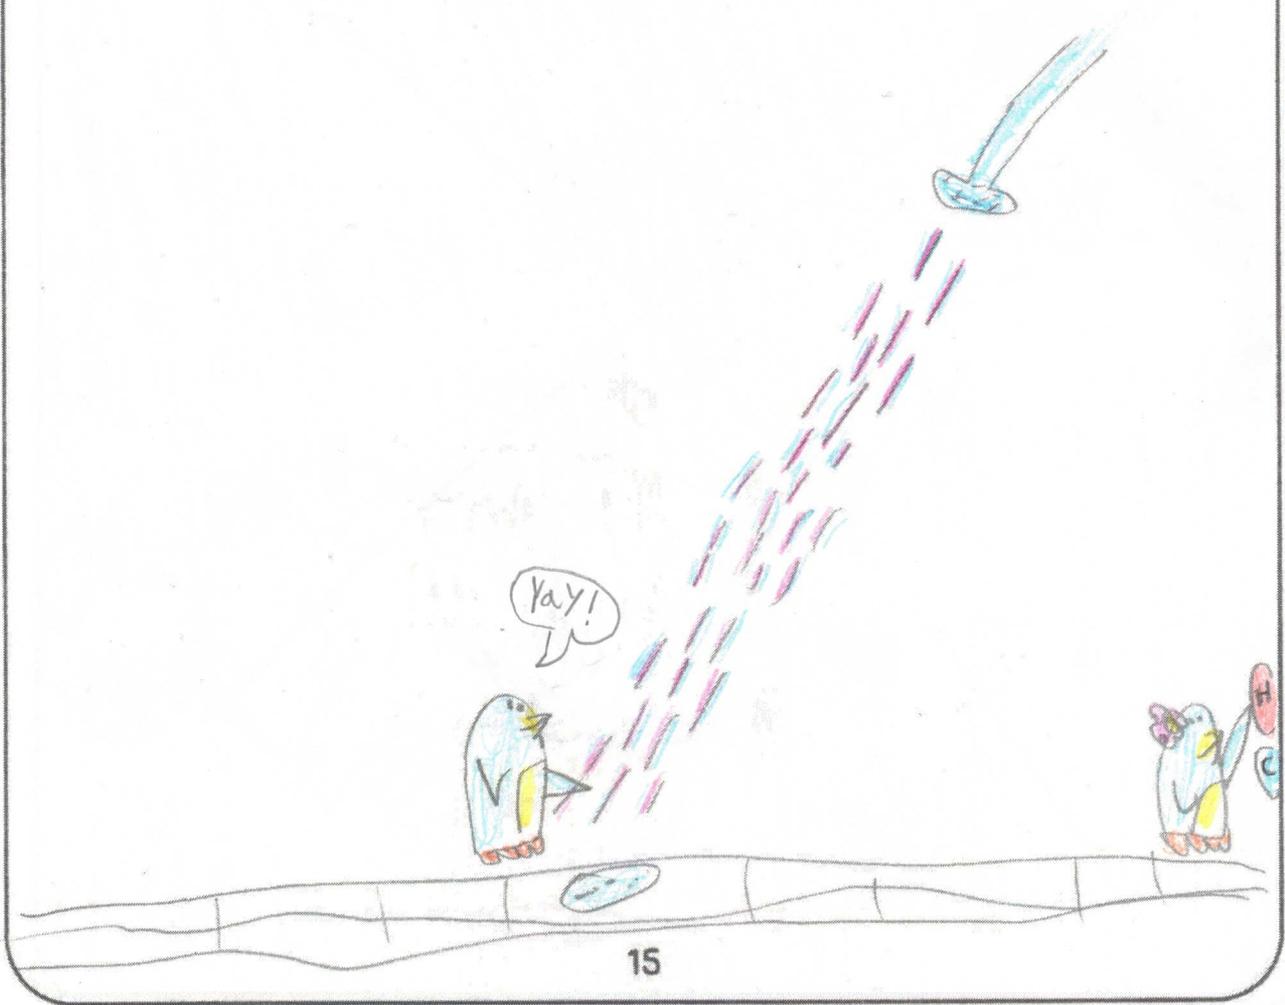

Everything went silent except for the sound of the pee.

The penguin and his mom looked at each other in disbelief. Then mom burst into laughter, and the penguin couldn't help but laugh, too.

The penguin decided it would be best to take a shower.
Mom set the water to warm to make sure he wasn't cold.

Then Mom closed the bathroom door and hung a magic sign that said, "NO MONSTERS ALLOWED!"

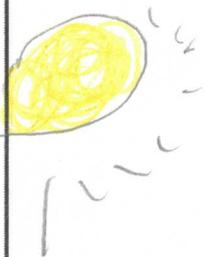

Then, when the penguin finished showering, his mom wrapped him tightly in a warm towel.

He felt safe and snugged.

And from that day on, the penguin never minded taking a shower.
