

The Space Mission Gone Wrong

By Aria

Splash the Shark and his buddy, Max the Astronaut, had a mission at the Satellite Station. In order to get to the Satellite Station, they had to travel through the Milky Way. They got on their spaceship and started their mission to the Satellite Station.

When they reached the Milky way, Splash and Max got hit by an asteroid and they fell unconscious and their spaceship was nearly destroyed. Soon the space police came and found them and brought them to the hospital on Mars.

The alien doctors took Splash and Max and started examining them closely. Max had a broken leg and Splash had a broken fin and they would both need surgery.

While Splash and Max were in surgery the space police went to Jupiter to get their spaceship fixed as a surprise for them when they woke up. The person who fixed it was Jared the Sloth; he was the best mechanic in the galaxy!

Jared worked really hard to make the spaceship look brand new. He even fixed it for free as a favor for the space police.

JUPITER

When the police got back to Mars, Max and Splash were awake. They were so happy to see the work Jared had done. "It's beautiful" exclaimed Splash.

After two days, Splash and Max had recovered from surgery. They could finally take their "new" spaceship to the Satellite Station. There, Splash and Max explained what happened to their boss. Luckily, he was not upset and they were able get straight back to work. At the end of the day, they walked out like pros, with smiles on their faces.

Afterwards, Splash and Max went to Max's home on Earth. They got ready for bed in their space pajamas and went to sleep in Max's bunkbed. When Splash woke up, he was so happy that he went on a little trip to Earth and met so many people. That is the end of Splash the shark and his amazing friend Max the astronaut. Thank you for reading my story.

