

The Little

Seed

BY:
KENDRIE JONES

One windy spring
day on the hillside
the big fruit tree
was blowing in the wind. Then a seed came tumbling
down.

Rain clouds blew in making shadows on
the little seed and the whole hillside. It started to rain hard.

The hard rain poked the little seed down into the ground. Over time the little seed grew into a little fruit tree
covered in fruits.

The little tree had lots of Yummy
fruit but nobody
could pick it
because it was surrounded by sticker bushes and cactus.

The little tree
felt sad. She felt like she had no reason because nobody could pick
and eat the fruit.

A family moved onto
the land and
noticed the cute
little fruit tree.

They removed
the cactus and
sticker bushes and
planted some pretty
hibiscus.

Now the family could pick the Yummy fruit. They also enjoyed making
pies and jams
with the fruit.

The little tree
felt happy because now she had a reason.
