KSPS PBS Presents the Highly Anticipated New Season of Inland Sessions Showcasing Local Musical and Spoken Word Talent from the Inland Pacific Northwest

Online streaming begins October 9, 2023

SPOKANE, WA — KSPS PBS, the Inland Northwest's premier public television station, is thrilled to announce the upcoming season of its beloved program, Inland Sessions. This captivating series continues to showcase the exceptional talents of artists from the Inland Pacific Northwest. Inland Sessions provides a unique platform for regional artists to shine, and the upcoming season promises to be no different, with a stellar lineup of diverse and talented performers.

The Red Books will kickstart season four of Inland Sessions October 9, 2023 on KSPS PBS

Scheduled Performances for the New Season:

The Red Books – October 9, 2023

Kickstarting the season, The Red Books will enchant viewers with their soulful melodies and lyrics that deeply resonate.

Jaeda – October 16, 2023

A rising luminary in the local music scene, Jaeda excels as a rapper, singer, and accomplished recording artist.

Jacob Rountree – October 23, 2023

Jacob Rountree's folk-indie blend strikes a chord, highlighting his masterful songwriting and heartfelt storytelling.

Betsy Rogue – October 30, 2023

Closing out the month, a 3-piece acoustic string band showcasing a unique blend of original folk and blues, lighting up the Inland Sessions stage with their raw talent.

Inland Sessions remains a local cultural hallmark in the Inland Pacific Northwest, inviting viewers to explore the region's diverse talent. Whether discovering new artists or savoring heartfelt spoken word, it celebrates our vibrant arts community.

"We're thrilled to share another season," said Jim Zimmer, KSPS PBS Executive Producer. "Our lineup showcases thriving regional talent, and we're proud to provide them a platform."

Don't miss a beat! Tune in to KSPS PBS this October to catch these extraordinary performances on Inland Sessions. Check your local listings for broadcast times or visit www.kspbs.org/programs/inland-sessions/ for more information.

KSPS PBS Mission:

To provide programs and events that entertain, engage, and educate to enrich all the communities we serve.

About KSPS PBS

Each day KSPS PBS invites people in two million households throughout the Inland Northwest and Canada to experience the worlds of science, history and nature; listen to diverse viewpoints and trusted reporting; and take front row seats to world-class performances. KSPS serves Spokane and eastern Washington, northern Idaho, western Montana, southeastern British Columbia, and most of Alberta including Calgary and Edmonton. The important work of KSPS PBS is possible through funding provided by foundations, corporate supporters and thousands of generous individuals across our viewing area. Thanks to the support of families and organizations across our region, we can use the resources of KSPS PBS to make a positive difference, on-air, online, on-demand and in action throughout our communities.

KSPS PBS Pillars

It is more important than ever to bring people together as citizens and neighbors to build strong and healthy communities. There is a voice uniquely qualified to this critical work. It is a public voice that people trust more than any other to teach their children, to deliver unbiased news and information, and to provide wholesome entertainment that educates, informs and delights.

At KSPS PBS, this trust is our strength and our hope...and the backbone of our plan to extend and deepen our public service through four major community-building initiatives: Education, Workforce Development, Arts & Culture and Civic Health. In addition to providing the trusted programs of PBS, we have identified these four pillars to bring focus to our community outreach and partnerships, with the goal to bring more people together to build stronger communities for all.
