Thanks to Our Valentines

PBS North Carolina serves the country's third largest public media market. That exposure brings us many supporters, indeed Valentines!

Wayne Monk and son Rick are known for their restaurant, Lexington Barbecue, but off duty they're avid PBS NC watchers. Rick says the quality of our programs is top-notch. His grandson is the next generation of Monks learning from PBS NC.

Rick Monk

Janice Leonard of Fayetteville says her kids grew up on PBS NC. She supports us so kids can benefit from our programs just like hers did.

Viola Robertson of Iredell County has been a donor since 1988. Except for Braves baseball, she mostly watches PBS NC. We're honored to be a hit with Viola!

Carole Keeler of Greensboro has supported PBS North Carolina for decades and has even made us a beneficiary of her estate plan. Carole has another sweetheart, a pup she adopted a few years ago on February 14. What did she name him? Valentine, of course.

We're grateful for all our Valentines. Thanks from the bottom of our hearts.

WATCH!

New Kids Series

Work It Out Wombats!, a new animated series for preschoolers, stars three marsupial siblings who live with their grandmother. The playful trio shows how computational thinking helps them solve problems, express themselves and accomplish tasks.

Catch the premiere Monday, February 6, at 9:30 AM on Rootle or 10:30 AM on PBS NC.

Get Crafty

Valentine's Day is a great time to make crafts for friends and family. Brainstorm valentine craft ideas with your child. Ask questions like, "What do you think we should make? What can we make from things we find at home?" Learn how to craft a heartfelt gift from egg cartons by visiting pbs.org/parents/crafts-and-experiments/egg-carton-hearts.

PLAY!

Celebrate Black History

Story time is one of many ways to teach young children about Black history. Here are some books to check out:

- The ABCs of Black History by Rio Cortez
- Sing a Song by Kelly Starling Lyons
- The Undeclared by Kwame Alexander
- Juneteenth for Mazie by Floyd Cooper

Find more suggestions at pbs.org/parents/thrive.
