Members Play an Essential Role at PBS North Carolina

PBS North Carolina embodies and celebrates all the things you love about your community—the traditions that give you a deep sense of place, the people who nurture and inspire you, the different points of view that expand your perspectives and the joy that fuels your soul.

It's where cultural icons, critically acclaimed filmmakers and world-class performers visit our living rooms and classrooms.

And it's where dinosaurs, striped tigers, red dogs and a big yellow bird remind us that sunny days will always chase the clouds away.

Did you know that donations from individual donors make up more than half of PBS North Carolina's operating budget?

Members like you ensure PBS North Carolina can give life to memorable storytelling, meaningful conversations and exceptional educational content. Thank you for your support!

THE PLAYMAKER

NC native son Paul Green went to Broadway and back with a dream: that someday he could write a new ending for the Old South. Can a play create justice? Can an actor perform change? The Playmaker takes a deep dive into the life, creative works and social justice advocacy of the Pulitzer Prize-winning playwright.
