

The secret of my Cat!

book by Natalie C [REDACTED]

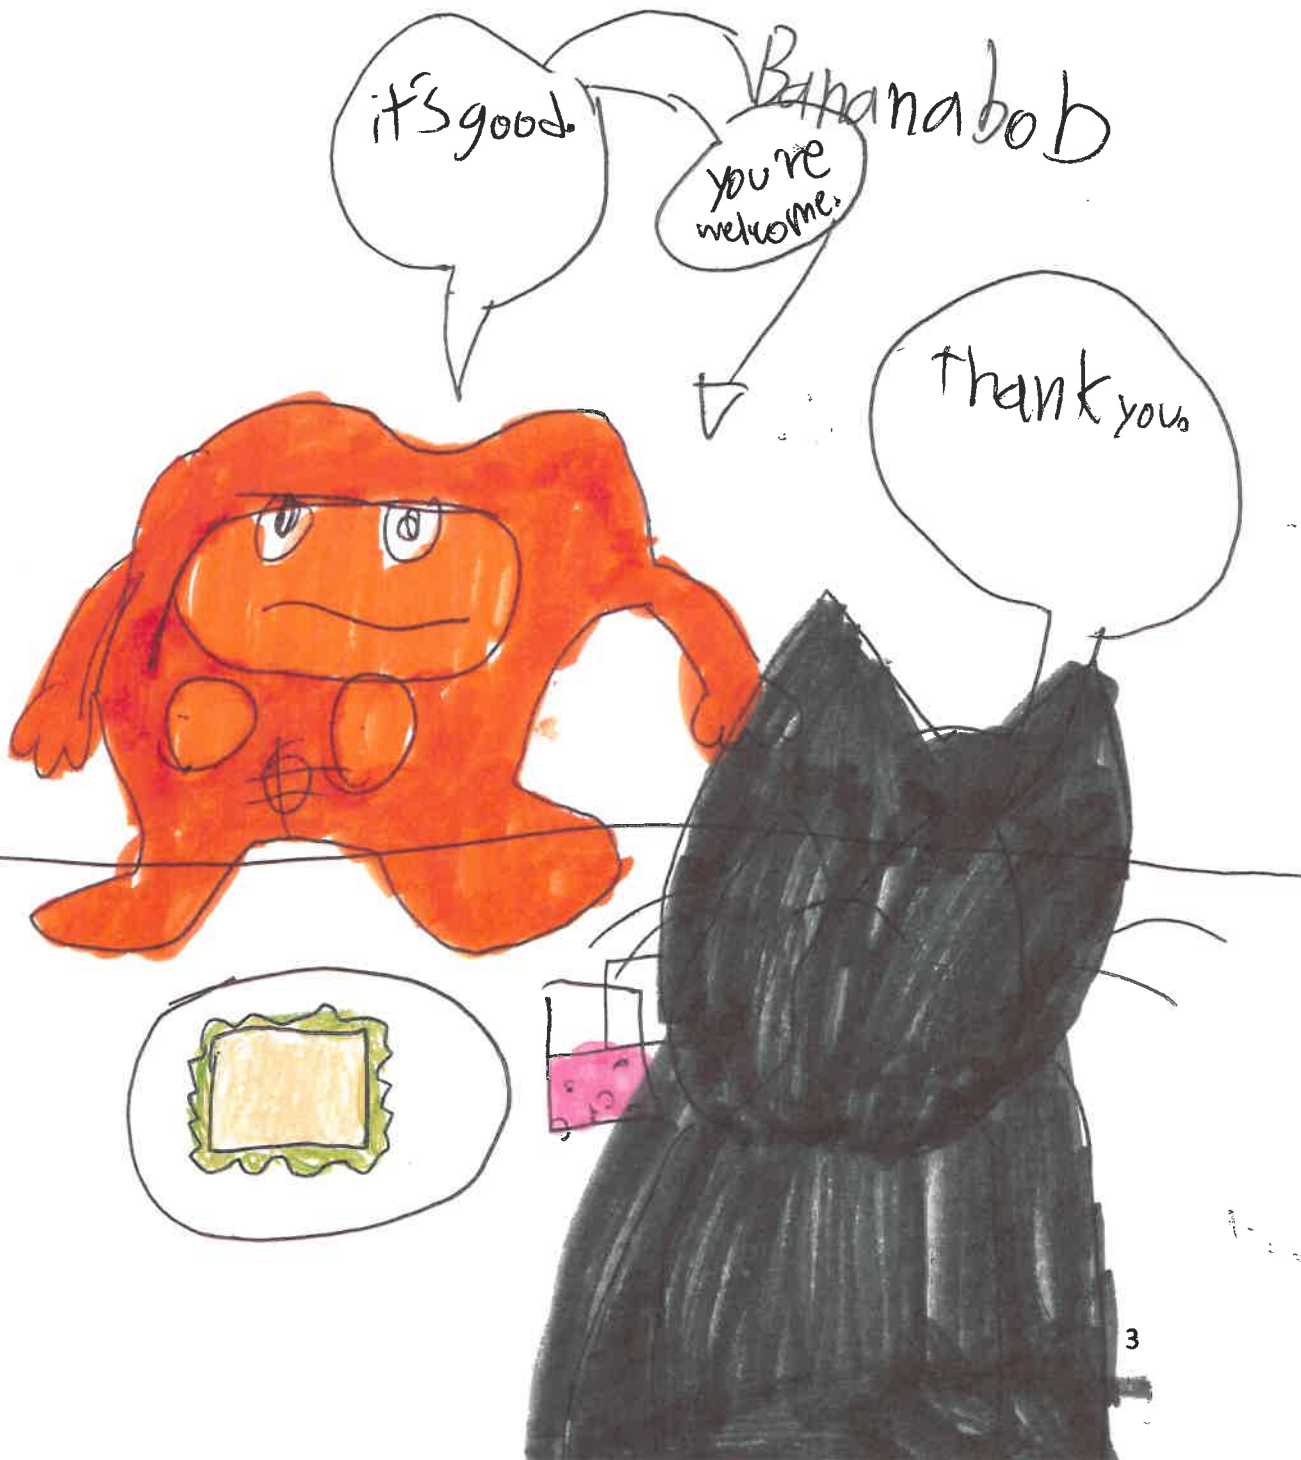

If you have a cat or a dog, do you ever wonder what happens when nobody but your pet is home? This is a theory that I have, and you might have it, too. But as you think of it more, does it become more interesting?

"Milo, what happens when I'm not home?"

Well let me tell you what my cat does. He probably plays with my barbie toys, offers rides to stuffed animals, and sometimes even makes lunch for my stuffies, but I also think that Banana Bob, my squishy monkey, rides on his back all the time! My cat's name is Milo, and Milo is a very good cat for me to have. Other people say that too. Everyone loves Milo!

Milo is very much like a dog. That is because he is a Tuxedo Cat. Tuxedo Cats are supposed to act dog like. Milo is just three years old, so he doesn't know a lot yet. For two reasons. Because he is a crazy cat. And humans are not cats either.

This is Milo.

- impatient.
- loves food.
- early dinner
- early bedtime.

- has lots of cousins
- likes human food fresh off the counter.
- awake at night.
- crazy 24/7

Milo is very cute, and here he comes now! I'm sure he wants to know what I'm writing about, but of course, I CAN'T TELL HIM. Milo met his cat cousins a few times. They are the cats of the family which include My grandma's cat Gertie, My Aunt's Cat Leo, My Uncle's cat Peanut, My Second Aunt and my Second Uncle's Cat James, and My Uncle who lives in Rhode Island and My Aunt who lives there too and they have two cats. Lily and Meep.

But Milo is probably the youngest of the whole family because he's three years old. But here's the best part. When we're away, like on vacation, he probably has an amazing time with my toys! He can fit in my dreamhouse, so I guess that means he likes playing with my Barbies. Sometimes, he cuffs my Chelsea doll around. And Milo probably does things at night. Sometimes he seems very active. He meows outside my door and scratches it.

We got milo when he was a baby!!

A lot of people say Milo is probably nocturnal, and I agree. All of the people in my house think that way. But I'm sure that when we're all asleep, nobody can imagine what happens...

But nobody can know because he does it when we are all asleep. But everybody has theories. Theories about how Milo spends his time. He takes naps during the day so that's a hint that Milo is probably a nocturnal cat.

I don't know how to speak cat. Neither does my family. But I do think that when Milo is a little older, He might be able to understand people. Or humans will evolve to understand cats, like Milo.

I hope you enjoyed this book. I will make more books when this is submitted or even published.

this book!

All About the Author.

Natalie C [REDACTED] lives in Buffalo. She has a cat named Milo and is very good at playing piano. She likes to play recorder too sometimes.

