A boy named Josh was playing his favorite game called "Adventure Through the Jungle" on his P.C. Suddenly, his little sister Riley burst into his room and said, "Can I play too?" "Sure!" said Josh. "It's a two-player game". Josh handed Riley the controller.

The kids started trying to get to the temple in the jungle to find an item that stops all chaos in the game. They were having such a fun time that they didn't even notice it was dinner time. Their mom called, "Kids, it's dinner time." Her voice surprised them and when they jumped up to leave the room, Riley accidentally spilled Josh's water onto the P.C. After they left the room, the game started glitching. All of a sudden, the main character, Adventure Dan, disappeared from the P.C. screen.

When the kids came back to the bedroom, Adventure Dan was standing in the room! They were very surprised. "Who is this?" said Riley. "I think I remember him", said Josh. He looked at the game screen, then looked at the man. "I think it's Adventure Dan from the game! But how is it possible?" said Josh. "Well I kinda spilled water on our P.C." said Riley in a quiet voice. "YOU DID WHAT?," said Josh angrily.

As the brother and sister argued, Adventure Dan started pointing at the game on the P.C. screen. "I think he wants to go back in", said Josh. "Same", said Riley. They worked very hard to get him back into the game. They tried everything they could think of. They even tried pouring more water on the P.C.!

They were very tired. And then, "I've got it!" cried Josh. I will turn off the P.C. Then Adventure Dan will be forced in. On the count of three..1. 2. 3. "CLICK!" Adventure Dan was forced back into the game. "WE DID IT!" cheered Josh and Riley. They got him back into his game! "Do you want to play some more?" asked Riley. "Sure, but be more careful with your water!"

The End!
